Mexico-New Zealand Surprise

Religious Schools? Yes

Interesting Shipload From Here—Where?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1920)

Old-fashioned Republicans, that never learn and never forget anything, are delighted, as they put it, that "Johnson and Borah have been knocked on the head."

The idea is that with a majority of eighteen in the Senate the Republicans will do as they please without consulting Johnson or Borah.

That is the old program: Get the help of powerful individuals when you need them, throw them overboard when done with them. The program may not go through so smoothly, for Hiram Johnson, thrown overboard at one end of the ship, is apt to climb up at the other end.

Johnson, Borah and La Follette, before the four years are over, will be able to make the Republicans do a lot of hard thinking.

This is Mr. Bryan's recipe, formulated yesterday: Mr. Wilson should resign at once. Then Marshall, acting President, should name Harding Secretary of State; then Marshall should resign and Harding would become President without waiting for March 4. Interesting program, but it won't go through.

New Zealand, small country, has brains enough to own its own railroads. These railroads, owned by the government, are run for the people, not for gamblers, speculators and exploiters.

The annual statement shows that they made a net profit of more than eight million dollars last year on less than two hundred millions invested. The roads earned more than nine thousand dollars a mile. Does this mean that public men in New Zealand are abler than in the United States? No, it only means that they are more honest, and that privately owned railroads do NOT control the government of New Zealand as they control that of the United States.

Mexico supplies another surprise from the outside world. She has mapped out a scheme for government ownership of a merchant marine. Docks and warehouses, exclusive coastwise rights, reduction of railroad freight rates for goods sent in nationally owned ships—such is part of the program.

It is all too ambitious for the United States. All we can hope for here is to stop a little of the public stealing and profiteering.

Voters of Michigan defeated, two to one, and wisely, a proposition to abolish Catholic parochial schools. The Constitution of the United States guarantees religious freedom, including the right to say, think and teach what you like.

Whoever wants a private school for his children because he thinks public schools not sufficiently "refined," is entitled to his private school as long as HE pays for it.

A man who thinks the public school not sufficient because it teaches facts that are accepted and does not teach religion about which citizens disagree, is entitled, at HIS expense, to maintain a school that will give his children any and as much religious teaching as he chooses, whether it be Protestant, Catholic, Mohammedan, Jewish, Christian Science or Zoroastrian.

The important thing is that no man or church should interfere with the public schools, that no public funds should be appropriated for anything EXCEPT American public schools on the American plan.

Those that think the public schools not good enough for their children make a mistake, but that is their business as long as THEY pay for the mistake.

An interesting shipload came to America on the Baltic two days ago. Fourteen millions in gold came as freight in the hold.

Georgette Le Blanc, first wife of the fancy writer, Maeterlinck, whose husband temperamentally put her aside for a girl in her teens, said she didn't know exactly why she had come, but she would always love Maeterlinck.

Various "society" people came; names not worth mentioning.

Most interesting was a boy nine years old, Samuel Rzeschewski, who in Paris recently played three-o-one chess games at the same time and beat his twenty-one opponents.

Gold is interesting, for it will buy many things. Georgette Le Blanc is interesting, for fourteen million dollars in gold would not buy for her, Maeterlinck, which is "what she wants." MOST interesting is the arrangement of microscopic specks of brain matter inside the skull of that small boy, enabling him to carry in his head twenty-one games of chess. After all, nothing but the human brain is really interesting.

Does it contain an immortal entity of consciousness called "soul"? Edison is investigating that question. As we get old we ask: "Where do we go from here?"

ENJOINS PLANT CO. STRIKERS

Court Forbids Shoeworkers' Unions to Fight for Closed Shop

Officials and members of shoe workers' unions, both national and local, were today enjoined by Judge Sisk of the Superior Court from taking any further part in the strike at the Thomas G. Plant Shoe factory in Jamaica Plain.

The strike was ordered on May 12, 1919, because of the refusal of the company to operate a closed shop.

Today's injunction perpetually enjoins the United Shoe Workers of America, Local 73; all members of Local 75 and the Allied Shoe Workers' Union of Greater Boston. They were forbidden to pay strike benefits to any employes of the company now on strike, or to intimidate any former employes who may desire to return to work, or any of the present employes.

The labor men were also prohibited from holding out the company as prejudiced and unfair to union labor, from influencing customers and from endeavoring to promote a closed shop in the factory.

BOSTON MAN DIES ON WAY TO LYNN HOSPITAL

The body of a laborer, believed to be a resident of Boston by the name of Jardiani, who died today on the way from East Saugus depot to the Lynn Hospital, awaits a claimant in Haven's morgue, Central avenue, Lynn. He alighted from a Boston train early today at East Saugus evidently quite ill. He was helped into the station and the police were called. He died in the ambulance. In the man's pockets were found a bunch of keys, $53.44 in cash and a pay envelop, marked "Jardano." He was apparently forty-five years old and 5 feet 7 inches tall.

ST. LOUIS GIRL KILLED IN BRUTAL ATTACK

St. Louis, Nov. 5.—Miss Edna Ellis, 18-year-old stenographer, was found slain in a vacant lot within a block and a half of her home on North Garrison avenue, today. Every clew indicated the girl had given up her life in defending herself from an attempted brutal attack. Her hands were cut to the bone, evidently due to her having attempted to grab the weapon with which she was killed.

34 Slain Since Death of MacSwiney

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 5.—The death toll in battles in Ireland since the death of Terence MacSwiney has reached thirty-four, it was stated at the Irish Office today. The casualties were tabulated as follows:

	Killed.	Wounded.
Policemen	21	27
Soldiers	5	8
Civilians	8	7

The Irish Office admitted that there had been reprisals in one or two cases, but said that strong measures were being taken to prevent this form of violence. The latest reprisals, according to Irish Office officials, were "suppressed as soon as possible with the aid of soldiers, who thereby evoked commendation."

2 WOMEN END LIVES WITH GAS

Cambridge and Waltham Suicides Caused by Fits of Despondency

Mrs. Elizabeth Jewell, sixty years old, was found dead in a chair in the kitchen of the home of her daughter, Mrs. Avis Fay, at No. 396½ Main street, Waltham.

She was sitting bolt upright, with her hands folded. All five jets of a gas stove were open. Doors and windows were tightly closed.

The mournful wailing of a cat which was in the room attracted the attention of Mrs. Fay. She told the police her mother had been despondent for some time.

Mrs. Josephine L. Peterson, forty-five years old, widowed but a few weeks, took her own life by turning on illuminating gas in the bedroom of her home at No. 124 Columbia street, Cambridge.

Three notes were found on a stand by the bed. One of them asked that neighbors take care of a pet cat. Search for the cat disclosed that it had been in the room and had died by gas along with its mistress.

BATTLE IN LONGFORD COUNTY

Woman Shot by 'Black and Tans' in County Galway

Dublin, Nov. 5.—Two soldiers were killed in a pitched battle between Sinn Fein volunteers and British troops at Edgeworthstown, County Longford, today. The Sinn Feiners constitute part of the Irish Republican army. The coastguard station at Union Hall near Skibbereen, on the Southwestern coast of Ireland was under attack during the night, and one man was killed.

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 5.—Three civilians, one of them a woman with a baby in her arms, were shot in Ireland today, according to advices from Dublin.

The woman, Mrs. Ellen Quinn of Adrishan, County Galway, was fatally wounded. Mrs. Quinn was seated on a low stone wall in front of her home when a police lorry passed. A shot was fired which entered her stomach.

The lorry passed on without slackening. The wounded woman staggered to the porch of her home, where she collapsed. A messenger was hastily summoned for a priest to administer extreme unction. While the woman lay dying another lorry passed with the policemen firing.

NEIGHBORHOOD IN TERROR.

Neighbors who had gathered at the Quinn home fled to the fields in terror. According to word received in Dublin from Galway, Mrs. Quinn told the priest that she saw two lorries coming down the road. The first shot that was fired struck her.

News of the wounding of the woman was communicated to the Irish office. Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, said that the police probably fired in anticipation of an ambuscade and that Mrs. Quinn was likely hit by a stray bullet.

The priest who was called to the Quinn home in Galway had preached a strong sermon only last Sunday denouncing murders by the Black and Tan police.

4 SOCIALISTS ELECTED BY NEW YORK VOTERS

New York, Nov. 5.—Complete returns today showed that New York State elected two Socialist Assemblymen, one Socialist State Senator and one Socialist Congressman in Tuesday's balloting. Socialists elected were:

Charles Solomon, Assemblyman, Brooklyn.
Samuel Orr, Assemblyman, Bronx.
Henry Jager, State Senator, Brooklyn.
Meyer London, Congressman, New York.

PALMER ORDERS PROBE OF KENTUCKY VOTE

Washington, Nov. 5. — Attorney-General Palmer wired instructions to District Attorney Slattery at Covington, Ky., to investigate charges of election frauds in various counties of Northeast Kentucky. The charges brought to the Attorney-General's attention last night are that in some districts there was wholesale repeating by voters, particularly August in the mountain districts. Palmer directed that immediate prosecutions be lodged wherever facts warranted that course.

POLES DEFEATED BY LITHUANIAN FORCES

London, Nov. 5.—The Polish forces under General Zeligmowski, that invaded Lithuania and seized Vilna, have been defeated by the Lithuanians north of Vilna, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

$25 for Dog, Even if He's Dead

Miss Rebecca S. Smith, Boston society girl, whose beautiful fur coat gave the Green-Eyed Monster a lively job among the passengers with whom she returned from Europe on board the steamship Olympic, which docked at New York. Returning to New England, the joy vanished from her young life when she discovered that her pet dog had been lost. A reward of $25, dead or alive, has been offered for the valuable animal.

Twenty-five dollars for a dog—dead or alive.

The district between Boston and Peterboro, N. H., was being combed today for a small, short-haired, hairless dog of rare breed, the property of Miss Rebecca S. Smith, Boston society girl, who returned from Europe to find her favorite pet missing.

Miss Smith was upset today at her home, No. 92 Mount Vernon street, over the loss of the animal which she had given the name of "Match." She offered herself to callers anxious to learn the details of her European experiences, while mourning over the loss of "Match." Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lindon Smith, plan to introduce her to society with a large

Gov. Coolidge Endorses Xmas Basket Fund

Vice-President-elect Calvin Coolidge, who was swept into office last Tuesday by an avalanche of votes, has endorsed the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund, which opened yesterday with a contribution of $1,000 from this newspaper.

The Governor has personal knowledge of the great work the Basket Fund does each year in providing free food for Christmas dinners to needy families of Greater Boston and he urges the people of the State to contribute promptly and generously as possible. In his letter to the American, he speaks of the happiness that has been brought year after year into the homes of thousands of worthy people through the medium of the Fund.

When a man of Governor Coolidge's standing commends the work of an organization, it means that the work has merit, as he is not in the habit of giving his endorsement unless he knows of the results accomplished.

The Basket Fund Editor is planning to break last year's record of 27,000 persons fed. The only limit to the number of needy families receiving food will be the amount of money contributed. Last year all records were broken, but more food could have been distributed had the necessary funds been received. Daily contributions are especially desirable, as the Basket Fund Editor can make his plans accordingly.

If the reader could take a trip with

CHICAGO HOLDUP NETS $30,000

Bank Messenger Assaulted by Four Bandits Who Make Get-Away

Chicago, Nov. 5.—A bold daylight robbery on the East Side today netted four bandits $30,000 and $400 in bonds, which was on its way to the State bank at Hyde Park, a Chicago suburb. The four men attacked Thomas Grace, bank messenger, near the Illinois Central Railroad tracks at Fifty-third street. The men escaped.

WRANGEL'S ARMY IS REPORTED SURROUNDED

Copenhagen, Nov. 5.—A Wolff agency telegram from Berlin quotes Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik War Minister, as saying in Moscow: "General Wrangel's anti-Bolshevik army in south Russia has been surrounded. Its fate is now decided."

MYSTERY IN TRAGEDY

Ambrose E. Roberts, a broker with offices at No. 15 State street, was found dead under suspicious circumstances today in an alley near No. 431 Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay.

Stock certificates of unknown value and $1,500 in cash were missing, as were his watch and diamond stickpin.

A police investigation has been begun, and efforts are being made to find somebody who saw Roberts between 4:45 o'clock yesterday, when he left his office, and the time his body was found in the alley today.

His clothing was disarranged and his arm doubled back under his head, as if in a quarrel, but there were no marks of violence on the body, according to Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

They declared the $1,500 was paid him in a stock deal late yesterday and that he carried it with him because he could not get into his bank.

LIVED IN BROOKLINE.

Roberts was about forty-five years old, and lived with his aunt, Mrs. Sominsky, at No. 9 Vernon street, Brookline. His mother is Mrs. S. Porter Gardner of No. 5 Arlington place, Haverhill. He was well known in State street.

According to the police, the state of his clothing indicated a struggle.

5 FALL RIVER MEN HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

Newport, R. I., Nov. 5.—Five Fall River men were injured when the automobile in which they were returning from a night's fishing party was wrecked at the lower end of Bellevue avenue. The car, which was being driven by Joseph Habib of No. 922 South Main street, upset when the front wheels ran on the curb at a sharp turn in the roadway. The injured are Joseph Habib, Paul Masiff, Lallar Saao, William Asset and Asset Kaleet.

'NICKEY' ARNSTEIN'S CASE BEFORE FEDERAL COURT

Washington, Nov. 5.—Jules W. (Nickey) Arnstein of New ork, alleged to have been the "master mind" in the $2,000,000 bond robberies, was arraigned today in the United States District Court here on the charge of conspiracy illegally to transport stolen goods into the District of Columbia. He pleaded not guilty and Justice Gould will hear arguments on his bail bond Monday morning.

When the Bank Commissioner took over the business of the company he declared that its capital not only was "badly impaired" but probably had been "wiped out completely."

'NO BILLS' ON HANOVER TRUST

Grand Jury Fails to Bring Indictments Against Bank Wrecked by Ponzi

After an extended investigation of the affairs of the Hanover Trust Company—Henry H. Chamberlain, president; William R. McNary, treasurer—the Suffolk County Grand Jury today returned a "no bill" to Judge John P. Brown in the Superior Criminal Court.

The trust company, with offices in the old Journal building at Washington and Water streets and a branch at the corner of Hanover and Cross streets, used to do business, when, on August 12, at the height of the Ponzi sensation, Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen took possession of the institution in the name of the State. Ponzi had recently become a director in the trust company.

Several weeks ago, under the direction of Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz, the Grand Jury began a "John Doe" inquiry into charges of alleged forgery, larceny and violations of the banking laws.

No names were mentioned, but it was agreed today at the courthouse that the men against whom these charges were directed had been fully exonerated by the "no bill" report of the Grand Jury.

DELAWANA BIDS FAREWELL TO HALIFAX

SENATOR WALSH JOINS MOVE TO RESTORE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

LEADERS ARE CALLED TO MEET IN NEW YORK ON NOV. 10

Washington, Nov. 5.— Eminent Democrats with a record of long service in the party have been invited to participate in the series of conferences which will open in Washington on November 10, for the purpose of reorganizing the party and reconstructing it once more as a factor in American politics.

Among those whose names are mentioned in connection with the conferences are the following:

William Jennings Bryan, Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the National Committee; Joseph W. Folk, former Governor of Missouri; Senator Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Senator W. J. Harris of Georgia, Gleorge White, present chairman of the National Committee; Edmund H. Moore of Ohio, pre-convention manager for Governor Cox; Secretary of Commerce Alexander and Senator Robinson of Arkansas.

The movement took definite shape with the announcement that the first meeting will be held November 10. A committee on organization will be named at this meeting and arrangements made for a general convention of representatives from every State, at which definite plans will be determined upon.

New York, Nov. 5.—A meeting of the Democratic National Committee will be called by Chairman George White within the next two weeks, Chairman White announced here today that he would retain his post. He knew nothing, he said, of the proposed conference of Democratic leaders as contained in reports from Washington.

Lindley M. Garrison, former Secretary of War under President Wilson, who left the administration several years ago, declared he knew nothing regarding the approaching conference of Democratic leaders.

It is said here that in view of the tremendous personal popularity of Alfred E. Smith and his unparalleled achievement in overcoming three-quarters of a million Republican votes, although defeated, will likely make him one of the prominent leaders in any reorganization plan.

It was reported from Washington that William Gibbs McAdoo intends to devote his spare time during the next four years in driving out of the Democratic party all "bosses."

Mr. McAdoo is said to be angered by the repudiation of President Wilson by Hines Bossen. He is especially aiming at Charles F. Murphy of New York and George E. Brennan of Illinois.

HINT AT MARTIAL LAW.

Persistent reports are current, says the Daily Express, that the British administration at Dublin is contemplating severer measures and that martial law will be enforced throughout Ireland.

The Morning Post printed a report that General Tudor may be put in command of the Royal Irish Constabulary.

A Belfast dispatch to the Times says that General Hackett Pain, former leader of the "Carson army" (the Ulster volunteers' organized by Sir Edward Carson), is resigning command of the Northern Irish district.

Deputy Lord Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork has been elected Lord Mayor, succeeding the late Terence MacSwiney, said a Central News dispatch from Cork. His election was unanimous.

"I will continue to struggle until the grave has closed over the last Republican in Cork," said the new Lord Mayor in accepting the office at Cork.

Reprisals were renewed at Templemore today by the military police in retaliation for the murder of Captain Hamilton, according to advices from that place. The whole population was reported in panic.

The latest outrages were committed in Tralee, Ballynote and Athlone.

HOUSES PUT TO TORCH.

The town suffered further reprisals after the military forces had left the streets. Uniformed men emerging from the police barracks, carrying quantities of petrol and armed with hatchets, set fire to the houses of a number of known Sinn Feiners.

Panic immediately ensued. A widow and two girls, frantic with fear, jumped from a window of their home in their night attire. Their home was gutted by the flames.

The trouble was precipitated by the disappearance of two members of the "Black and Tans." The police have forbidden the shops to reopen until the two missing men have returned.

Other reprisals also occurred in the town of Tralee. A number of creamery houses were destroyed.

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Home Secretary for Ireland, replying in the House of Commons to a question as to when a stop was to be put on the reprisals against the people of Ireland by the police and military, announced that nine police are now held on various charges growing out of reprisals, two of them are held on charges of murder.

FOUND DEAD IN BACK BAY ALLEY

although the absence of marks of violence baffled them.

At his home it was stated he was not seen last night.

Persons living near Massachusetts avenue and Newcastle street, where the body was found, denied hearing any sounds of a struggle during the night.

The body lay about twelve feet from the street.

REPORTED WIFE MISSING.

Roberts, according to the police, reported to them some months ago that his wife.

At the same time he accused his chauffeur, Gerard Hickey, of manipulating checks. He also charged that Hickey had taken his auto.

According to the police Hickey sold the automobile in Buffalo and then proceeded to Chicago.

One of his associates expressed the belief that Roberts had meant to go to Chicago today to identify Hickey, said to be under arrest there.

His office employes and associates said he was in apparently good spirits last night.

No one knew why he should be in the neighborhood in which his body was found, and they were convinced he was murdered.

The alley runs into Columbus avenue, between Massachusetts avenue and Northampton street. At night it is a dark passageway, although many street cars pass by a few feet away.

Fences in the rear of the houses run close to where the body was found. One police theory is that the broker was overpowered by men who had concealed themselves behind the fence until he was lured into the neighborhood by some supposed friend.

AUTO WRECKED TRYING TO DODGE BICYCLE

CATCH WABAN THIEF LOOTING RESIDENCE

Frank M. Carroll, alias Samuels, forty-three years old, claiming no home, was arrested in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Dickenson at No. 837 Chestnut street, Waban, after gaining entrance by forcing a window.

The Dickenson home has been entered three times since August 21. Patrolman Henry Roberts of the Newton police was detailed to guard the home following the last break and was in the house when Carroll entered.

BOSTON MAN HELD IN GIRL ABDUCTION CASE

Hartford, Conn. Nov. 5.—Sam Gilberto of Boston and Leonard Licata of Lawrence, Mass., were arraigned in the Superior Court today and charged with attempting to abduct Mario Dorio, aged twenty-one, of No. 48 Lafayette street, New Britain. Their attempt was frustrated as they were about to place the girl in a taxicab. Both were held for the Superior Court.

GIRL IS SOUGHT IN $1,000 ATHOL THEFT

Athol, Nov. 5.—Jewelry, money and clothing, valued at $1,000, were stolen from the home of Harry W. Masters on Prospect street. The police are searching for Miss Ruth Horne, aged nineteen, a State charge, who has been employed in the Masters' home for the past six weeks. She disappeared Tuesday.

Cook Upset in Auto Sues for $10,000

Miss Mary A. Gaffey of Brookline has filed a $10,000 damage suit in the Norfolk County Superior Court against her employer, Lucius J. Barnet, for injuries which she alleges she sustained when his auto was involved in an accident in Swampscott last Summer. Miss Gaffey alleges that she was employed by Mr. Barnet as cook at his Summer home in Marblehead and that the terms of her employment provided that he furnish transportation for her to attend church Sunday mornings.

She claims that on August 3, while being driven to church in Mr. Barnet's car, the auto overturned and threw her out.

Miss Nannie Walsh of Brookline, an occupant of the auto when the accident occurred, has filed similar suit for $5,000.

"WET" VICTORY REACHES 20,000

Measure Has No "Kick," However, Because of Dry Amendment; 16 Towns Missing

With only sixteen small towns missing, the referendum on the sale and manufacture of 2.75 per cent. beer and wine shows that the "wets" have won a clear cut victory in the State by a majority of nearly 20,000 votes.

Although it is believed that the missing towns lean toward the "dry" column not more than 1,000 "wet" votes are expected to be added from this source. The vote now stands, yes, 424,341; no, 407,841.

Any action that may now be taken to put the measure into effect is up to the Massachusetts Congressmen and Senators as the act is inoperative owing to the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment. Governor Coolidge had previously vetoed the bill.

The vote of the thirty-eight cities was as follows:

IRISH TO TESTIFY AT U. S. ATROCITIES PROBE

Washington, Nov. 5.—At a meeting of the "committee of one hundred" recently appointed to inquire into English atrocities in Ireland, it was determined to hold a public session in Washington on November 17, at which testimony will be given by eye witnesses and participants in Irish tragedies. The committee of one hundred includes ten United States Senators, the Governors of five States and fifteen bishops. Cardinal Gibbons is a member.

HONOR COOLIDGE IN HOME CITY

Neighbors Will Tender Him Reception at Smith College Tonight

Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania and Job Hedges of New York are scheduled to speak at the "home town" reception to be given tonight in John M. Green Hall, Smith College, Northampton, in honor of Vice-President-elect Calvin Coolidge: President (Emeritus) L. Clark Seelye of Smith College will preside.

The Governor attended a dinner at the University Club last night given in his honor and on Monday evening next will assist at a reception to the crew of the fishing schooner Esperanto on their return to Gloucester, after defeating the Lunenburg, N. S., schooner Delawana for the International championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleet.

Congratulatory telegrams continued to pour in upon the Vice-President-elect. Among the latest were:

NEW ENGLAND PROUD.

Governor R. Livingston Beeckman, Rhode Island: "Hearty congratulations on your election. It makes all of New England feel proud."

Governor William Main, Maine: "Your name on the ticket was a great factor in the result."

Governor Frank O. Lowden, Illinois: "My heartiest congratulations upon your great victory. I never doubted the results, but the figures surpass my highest expectations."

FAITH IN AMERICA'S FUTURE.

David Jayne Hill, former ambassador to Germany: "We can now have faith in America's future as we have had it in Massachusetts."

Senator William M. Calder, New York: "Mrs. Calder joins with me in congratulating Mrs. Coolidge and yourself."

Julia Arthur, "Success to our future ship of State. America has picked a great first mate."

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes: "I am more happy than I can express. Sincerest congratulations."

Myron T. Herrick, former ambassador to France: "Warmest congratulations. The declared intentions of Senator Harding to invite you to assume new responsibility to enter the inner council of the nation has been read with enthusiasm the country over. Vice-President Hobart, presiding over the Senate, for years was a powerful factor in making McKinley's administration a conspicuous success."

$25 REWARD FOR GIRLS' DOG

Society Miss, Grieving Over Lost Pet, Has Gone Into Seclusion

HUNT IS UNDER WAY.

The Smith chauffeur was dispatched early today with a large bundle of placards, which he posted in every postoffice and crossroads store from Boston to Peterboro, offering a reward for information leading to the dog's recovery. The parents declared they would leave nothing undone to find information about "Match," whether dead or alive, in order to alleviate their daughter's grief. A house-to-house canvass along the highways was made by other Smith servants.

The dog was lost while being taken from the Smith Summer place near Peterboro to welcome his young mistress on her arrival home. He was in the rear seat of the automobile, with the debutante's younger sister, Lois. It is believed that while Miss Lois had her attention turned he tumbled off the rear seat onto the road.

Miss Rebecca was keenly disappointed when she arrived here Thursday night from New York, where she and her mother landed on the Olympic Wednesday, and did not see "Match" among those waiting to greet her. She went at once to the family residence on Beacon street and has been in seclusion since.

OF RARE BREED.

"We are so anxious about 'Match,'" her mother said today, "that we want any information about her. Even if dead, we would know that we had done everything in our power to locate Rebecca's pet.

"The dog is of Dutch Skipperty breed. Their history is that they were formerly used as canal watch dogs in Holland, but Rebecca while in Holland this Summer could not find any. There are only two or three kennels with them in the United States of which ours at Peterboro was one."

Miss Rebecca was taken to Europe following her graduation from the Westover School at Middlebury last Summer. She is a member of the Junior League. With her mother she toured several countries and concluded with a visit to headquarters of the American Army of Occupation in Germany. Major General Allen, in charge of America's troops on the Rhine, delegated Colonel Bell as staff to escort the Boston society girl and her parent in a trip of several days over the battlefields of the Western Front.

DAMAGE OF $3,000 IN MEDFORD FACTORY FIRE

Women's skirts and office factory furnishings, said to be valued at about $3,000, were destroyed by a fire on the second floor of the four-story brick building at No. 26 High street, Medford. The garments were the property of the B. & B. Manufacturing Company, and the manager of the concern is Charles Miller of No. 484 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury.

FOOD WINS FOR OKLAHOMA WOMAN A SEAT IN CONGRESS

FORMERLY OPPOSED SUFFRAGE

Miss Robertson Fed Soldiers Free and Canvassed Voters in Her Restaurant

Muskogee, Okla., Nov. 5.—They voted for me and they bet against me, but I shall sit in Congress, and I shall feel no embarrassment, because I am the only woman in the House."

Miss Alice M. Robertson, bearing the confident smile that she has worn since she declared herself a candidate, was the least surprised person in Oklahoma when it was definitely known that she had defeated a veteran congressman, a Democrat, in a State that has been Democratic since it entered the Union thirteen years ago.

Everyone but Miss Robertson, and everyone knows her, was as much amazed at her victory as at the Republican landslide that has swept Oklahoma into the Republican fold.

She expressed that thing correctly. They nominated her because they liked her. They gave her a huge "complimentary" vote for the same reason, and to the wonderment of the district that complimentary vote elected her. That and the support of a great many Democrats.

HAD OPPOSED SUFFRAGE.

Until a few years ago, Miss Robertson was a violent anti-suffragist and an officer in the State League for the Prevention of Women Suffrage. But when the women were given the vote she declared:

"You men have brought suffrage upon us women. I am going to find out if you meant it."

She declared herself a candidate for the Republican nomination to Congress. When nominated everyone thought she could easily be beaten at the election.

Miss Robertson conducted a campaign that was more than unusual. It was extraordinary. She is the owner of a successful restaurant in Muskogee. In her daily advertisement she combined news of Cafe Lable delicacy with Bible quotations and political arguments. But she worked up a method of intensive campaigning that was still more noteworthy. In her restaurant she approached every voter of whose sentiment she was in doubt, sat down at his or her table, and, while consuming a bowl of soup, talked politics. She was a record of seventeen bowls of soup at one dinner hour.

Other than those methods Miss Alice let her campaign speak for itself. She made no political speeches, admitting that she couldn't if she tried. She wrote few letters and made no personal solicitations among the service men whom she regarded as her best friends. During the war she fed every soldier without charge and was one of the most active workers in the Red Cross canteen.

MAS FOR SECRETARY.

The only decision she has made since her election is that she will not have a woman as her secretary in Washington. "It's man's job," she said.

Miss Robertson has held many appointive offices since coming to Oklahoma, behind a pair of oxen, forty years ago. She was five years old then. With her grandfather she worked as a missionary among the Indians and helped to translate the Bible into the Indian language.

In 1912, Theodore Roosevelt, her personal friend, appointed her postmistress of Muskogee. She was the first woman in the country to be postmaster of a first class postoffice and held that office until Roosevelt retired.

Miss Robertson is decidedly stout, but equally active,andshe has a smile that is as good as any politician's. She took her first ride in an airplane a few weeks ago during her campaign and she liked it, but declined an invitation for a second ride.

LOSING PLAYER FOUND DEAD WITH GAS ON

Luke Durgin, aged sixty, a lodger in a St. Peter's street rooming house, was found dead in his room with gas flowing from two open jets. It is believed that he committed suicide after brooding over heavy gambling losses, which, according to Mrs. D. S. Cameron, the landlady, he has experienced during the past week.

Coolidge Endorses Xmas Basket Fund

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
STATE HOUSE, BOSTON

CALVIN COOLIDGE
GOVERNOR

21st October, 1920.

Editor, Boston American,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir:

The work of your newspaper in starting the Christmas Basket Fund has always had my endorsement, and this year I would like to add a word in heartiest approval of the happiness brought to many homes by means of this Boston American Christmas Basket Fund.

I would urge all our people to make prompt and generous contributions to this worthy cause, that the work done in past years in bringing cheer to the homes of thousands of our needy people may be continued.

Very truly yours,

Calvin Coolidge

WEEKS PICKED FOR CABINET

Ex-Senator Sutherland of Utah Also Believed Chosen by Harding

New York, Nov. 5.—Two of the ten men who will constitute the next Cabinet have been tentatively selected by President-elect Harding, it is believed.

One is ex-Senator George Sutherland of Utah. Sutherland was at Marion most of the Summer and was perhaps Senator Harding's closest adviser. He is regarded as leading candidate for Attorney-General. He is a lawyer.

The other man considered a Cabinet certainty is former Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, one of the most influential members of the Republican executive committee. Senator Weeks is an Annapolis graduate, and indications point to his succeeding Josephus Daniels as head of the navy.

For Secretary of State Elihu Root, Henry Cabot Lodge, Philander C. Knox and Herbert C. Hoover are mentioned.

ROOT NOT IN FAVOR.

It is believed Root's name can be disregarded. Those closest to Harding say he does not consider himself or the present Republican heads under any particular obligations to Mr. Root whose European activities during the best of the campaign caused the party heads grave concern.

It is doubtful if Senator Knox's health would permit him to assume the post Senator Lodge has protested he does not desire a Cabinet position.

For Secretary of Treasury, Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Frank Vanderlip of New York, George Reynolds, Chicago banker, and also Ex-Senator Weeks, already mentioned for the Navy are talked of. There is a warm personal friendship between Lowden and Harding.

But for the prejudice against making an army man head of the department, it is believed General Wood or General Pershing would be chosen Secretary of War. Julius Kahn, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, also has been mentioned for this post.

ONE MAN FROM OHIO.

It is considered a certainty that Ohio will have one member of the Cabinet as Postmaster-General. Walter F. Brown, ex-Progressive leader of Toledo and Harry M. Daugherty, Harding's personal adviser, are mentioned with Will H. Hays of Indiana and Charles D. Hilles of New York.

For interior, Hoover has been the centre of much speculation because he is an engineer, a conservation advocate and familiar with the conditions of the great West. Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania State forester, has been a frequent visitor to Marion this Summer.

Few names have been heard as labor and commerce possibilities. For the latter John J. Esch of Wisconsin has been mentioned. Esch collaborated with Cummins of Iowa in the framing of the Cummins-Esch railroad bill. Esch was defeated in the Wisconsin primaries.

one of the men or women assigned by the Boston American to investigate cases, he would not hesitate about donating. Suppose you went with one of the investigators to a tumble-down tenement and found there a widow with seven children eating their first and only meal of the day at 10 a. m.—a meal consisting solely of half a peck of potatoes given by a neighbor!

Don't you think that you would be willing to help that family? Such a case was found last year in South Boston by one of our ablest women investigators. She was so impressed by the sight that she hastily went to the nearest grocery and bought provisions with her own money for the family.

And, as often happens, this widow had not written in for a basket of food. The investigator came across her while looking up other cases in the same neighborhood.

MANY A TEAR SHED.

Many a tear was shed by the Basket Fund workers last year on account of some of the things they encountered during their labors. There was the pathetic figure of an old blind woman who walked alone a mile and a half to the distribution station at City Hall, Cambridge, to get her basket. She not only got the food for her Christmas dinner, but, when her condition was noted a young man was found to escort her home and carry the parcel for her.

Then there was the case of an old woman living in a dingy, small tenement in the South End, who seldom left her quarters because of failing eyesight and crippled legs. A friend who called on her a few days after Christmas found the card entitling the old lady to a basket in the mail box. Although the food had all been distributed, the Basket Fund editor arranged for a similar order, so that the poor old woman would not be disappointed.

The workers try to put as much heart interest in this work as possible. When the beloved John Boyle O'Reilly wrote his famous poem, "In Bohemia," and referred to "The organized charity, scrimped and iced" in the name of a cautious, statistical World, Chicago banker, and also Ex-Senator Weeks, already mentioned for the Navy are talked of. There is a warm personal friendship between Lowden and Harding.

But for the prejudice against making an army man head of the department, it is believed General Wood or General Pershing would be chosen Secretary of War. Julius Kahn, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, also has been mentioned for this post.

ONE MAN FROM OHIO.

It is considered a certainty that Ohio will have one member of the Cabinet as Postmaster-General. Walter F. Brown, ex-Progressive leader of Toledo and Harry M. Daugherty, Harding's personal adviser, are mentioned with Will H. Hays of Indiana and Charles D. Hilles of New York.

UNDERWEAR AS MURDER CLEW

Slayer of Globe-Trotter Waters Left Blood-Stained Garment at Laundry

New York, Nov. 5.—An army of detectives today scoured the Tenderloin for "James Brown," charged with the murder of Leeds Vaughan Waters, wealthy globe trotter, in Waters' room in the Plymouth Hotel.

A torn and blood-stained suit of underwear formed the sole and unsubstantial clew to guide the officers in their search.

The undergarments were wrapped up by the murderer after the fight and killing in Waters' room, and dropped at a nearby laundry, evidently with the intention of getting ridding of them.

From the description of the man who left the underwear, however, the police believe they have a faint idea of Waters' murderer.

They describe him as about twenty-five years old, six feet tall, apparently of Italian extraction, despite the name he gave, and possibly a chauffeur.

He was shabbily dressed, wore no overcoat and seemed to have no funds.

DID NOT ROB VICTIM.

The mystery in the case is made all the greater by the failure of the murderer to rob his victim.

While Waters had apparently little money with him, he wore diamonds worth thousands of dollars, and they were not touched.

Detectives were today facing the discouraging task of finding one where Waters picked up the man with whom he registered for a room at the Plymouth, Wednesday morning.

The millionaire globe trotter left the Delta Epsilon Club at West Forty-Fourth street about five hours before he appeared at the hotel desk with his mysterious protege. They did not arrive in a taxicab, although "James Dunn" appeared to be a taxi driver.

TERRIFIC STRUGGLE.

The autopsy revealed many cuts and bruises on Waters' head, besides the fracture of the skull that caused his death.

The weapon used in beating him to death was probably his gold headed cane, which is missing.

The bed in the death chamber gave testimony to the terrific duel which must have preceded the killing. It was torn and blood-soaked, where the men had swayed back and forth in their deadly struggle.

Waters' family has been of little assistance to the police, who have been trying to check up his familiar associates when he was in New York.

He was about fifty years old, rather repulsive in appearance and affected effeminacy. All his lines was one of effeminacy. All his underwear was silk of foreign make.

MILLIONAIRE GOES TO PRISON FOR FIVE YEARS

Cleveland, Nov. 5.—George Meyers of Toronto, a millionaire manufacturer, who two years ago was convicted under the Mann Act, left this city to begin his five-year sentence in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta. He has delayed imprisonment by appeals to the higher courts. He surrendered to the Federal authorities here after arriving from Toronto.

MILL WAGE CUT IS FEARED

Fall River Manufacturers and Textile Council Start Series of Conferences

Fall River, Nov. 5.—The executive committee of the Manufacturers' and Textile Council held their first conference here concerning the next wage agreement to take effect on December 1.

Following the adjournment, President James Tansey of the Textile Council and also president of the American Federation of Textile Operatives was the authorized spokesman for both sides. He said:

"We held our first conference and the general situation which exists in the local cotton mills was discussed. That is all we have to say for the present."

Mr. Tansey was asked if the manufacturers had made any suggestions concerning the question of reducing the wages of the local operatives, as has been done by some of the independent plants. He answered in the negative, adding that his statement covered the whole situation at the present time. No date has been set for another conference, but it is very likely that it will take place next week.

W. Frank Shove, president of the manufacturers, had nothing to add to Mr. Tansey's statement and he referred the inquirers to him. Notwithstanding the fact that the labor leaders are ready to do their best to enable the manufacturers in keeping the present rate of wages there is a rumor on the street that the mill owners are ready to ask the labor leaders to agree to a reduction. Some owners of mills affiliated with the Manufacturers' Association have already made such a decision. It is certain that the operatives will not agree to a reduction.

Golden Predicts Bitter Fight if Wages Are Cut

Fall River, Nov. 5.—John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, has sent a statement from New York concluding with these words:

"If I am any judge of the temper of the textile workers, not only in New England but elsewhere, either organized or unorganized, and I feel that it my business to find out as far as possible what is their state of mind, they are in no mood to stand for any reduction in wages, at this time.

"They are willing to make their share of sacrifice in the shape of curtailment, but they will not stand for any reduction in wages, and in my opinion if the textile manufacturers of the country, either in the aggregate or any other branch, attempt to reduce wages we shall witness one of the most bitter struggles between labor and capital that ever took place in the textile industry."

'Mme. Trotzky' Lives in Luxury in Berlin

By International News Service.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—Has Commissar Leon Trotzky, of the Russian Soviet government, hidden his wife and children in Berlin to escape the dangers of possible counter-revolution in Russia?

Is it true they are living in luxury at the home of the Monte Bank Dr. Bandike, at No. 13 Hiebtreusstrasse, Berlin?

These questions fell like a bomb into a drowsy meeting of the German press representatives dealing under the bull of a soporific government report in the foreign office in Wilhelmstrasse. The government represented the most reactionary newspaper group in Germany. The foreign office representative stirred uneasily and gave the usual stereotyped reply:

"The foreign office knows nothing of the matter. It will have to be investigated."

CITIZEN OF RUSSIA.

The International News Service correspondent visited Mme. Trotzky. He stopped on his way to examine Bolshevik records, which show that Anna Trotzky, wife of a newspaper editor and journalist, citizen of Russia, was born in Odessa, November 5, 1890. Her oldest daughter was born in Sebastopol in 1905 and a son was born in Vienna in 1906.

The son opened the door, and after showing the correspondent into a luxurious room asked his business.

"Yes, my father is His Excellency Trotzky. He is a Russian newspaper writer," said the boy in German.

"Your father can't be corresponding for a Russian newspaper now?" it was suggested.

"No," replied the boy. "But he is a journalist. Now he has some shares of stock in a bank in Copenhagen. He is not in Copenhagen now. Sometimes he is in Stockholm."

DENIES OFFICIAL STORY.

Madame Trotzky entered. She spoke in German with a strong Russian accent.

"Of course, the Foreign Office knows all about us," said she. "They gave us permission to live here and to purchase a house in Charlottenburg."

Madame Trotzky appeared in Berlin last Spring, immediately before the Polish attack against Russia. She has had plenty of money. Her mysterious husband, who brought her here, is not regarded with the police.

Madame Trotzky said her husband was anti-Bolshevik but not a reactionary and that they had to leave Russia many years ago and that the fourteen-year-old son has never been in Russia.

Madame Trotzky explained that it was a coincidence that she born the name of the Red commissar at Moscow. "I have seen Leon Trotzky," said she. "He was in Vienna when I lived there. He is a very clever speaker. But my husband does not belong to the Communist party. His views are just the opposite views."

LIQUOR CLEW IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Methuen Sunday School Superintendent Now Believed Struck by Truck

Methuen, Nov. 5.—Rum-runners, known to be operating in Methuen and the Andovers, are blamed for the killing of Mrs. Harris Timson of No. 141 Tyler street, whose mutilated body was found lying in North Lowell street by a motorcycle rider Wednesday.

State and local police admitted today that they have clews linking bootleggers with the death of the elderly woman, but refused to give out further information, saying that it might upset their plans for apprehending the men they have under suspicion.

It was also learned, however, that Chief of Police Harry Nimo and State Police Officer Richard P. Griffin, who have been working on the case, have been able to reconstruct the circumstances surrounding the death of the Sunday school superintendent.

The theory is that the bootleggers who are known to have been busy in this locality manufacturing liquor for sale in Lowell, shipped a consignment of liquor on the night Mrs. Timson met her death. This liquor was being carried in a car placed on an auto truck and the driver instructed to rush the cargo.

It is believed that the machine struck Mrs. Timson, killing her, but that the driver refused to stop for fear the character of his cargo would be learned by the police.

While Chief Nimo has not admitt It today, it is asserted that arrests in the case are expected before night.

'CORKEY' TALKS, THEY SAY

Rumors From State Prison Accuse Prisoner of Keeping Silent for Money Reasons

If stories which have seeped through the granite walls of the Charlestown State Prison be true, Patrick J. Hanley, otherwise known as "Corkey" and "Kinny" Hanley, is one of the world's prize showmen.

"Corkey," according to inmates of the prison, can talk.

The time-worn maxim, "money talks," is especially applicable to "Corkey," prisoners say. It is recorded on the secret books of those inside that for a certain stipulated sum of money Corkey would hold conversation.

But, prisoners say, it wasn't everybody in the prison who was favored by Hanley. If he knew the man and could trust him he would talk on the payment of it. In some instances it is recorded that he charged as much as $5 for a demonstration of his vocal abilities.

There was one inmate of whom "Corkey" was especially fond, and while on, as the prisoners go, was the recipient of his favor without cost. Harry C. Lamson, murderer of Patrolman Joseph Reiser and companion of Herman L. Barney in the Watertown jail break, stood high in "Corkey's" favor.

Inmates and officials as well say they have heard Lamson conversing with Manster. But to others it was necessary that money be forthcoming before they could be held.

"Corkey" was a sharp bargainer during his stay in prison. It is said that he made considerable money through the sale of articles he has reclaimed from legal waste in the yard. Other articles he bought from fellow inmates for slight sums and then resold them at big profit.

It is recorded that five years ago "Corkey" was up for parole. The commissioners offered him his liberty if he would take them. It is further recorded that he wrote this message to the commissioners:

He didn't stand on his head, but he did remain dumb to officialdom, and completed his full term of twenty-five years, the only prisoner to do so in the history of the prison under the habitual criminal act.

JAP CONSUL IN U. S. ACCUSED

May Demand Official's Recall for 'Pernicious Activity' Against Land Bill

Washington, Nov. 5.—As a result of the passage of the "Anti-Alien Land Law," the recall of Ohiro Oyama, Japanese consul at San Francisco, may be demanded by the State Department, it is believed.

Charges that the consul was guilty of "pernicious activity" in advising voters to oppose this bill have been filed by the Anti-Japanese Association of Los Angeles and others in California.

It was announced at the State Department that the complainants had been unable to get proof of all their allegations, the receipt of which, it is understood, will result in a demand for Oyama's recall.

Members of the Japanese colony at Los Angeles have wired the Japanese Embassy at Washington denying the charges against Oyama, and Japan is said to be washing the issue clean.

Japanese newspapers, commenting on the result of the Presidential election, have expressed the view that the victory of Harding is a setback to the friends of the Nations in the League.

The Jiji Shimpo expresses the opinion that Mr. Harding is more unfavorable to Japan than the Governor Cox, but says his attitude will probably be modified in office.

The Yorozu Chono calls upon the government to protest formally against the anti-alien legislation.

All Japan showed an unusual interest in the American election, but a large official proportion of the office expressed the opinion that the public would await the outcome of the Washington conference on the subject of the land law. The result of the ballot in California, especially, was received with no surprise and evoked no demonstration.

The Nichi Nichi said:

"Certainly the Americans, whose history glorified Washington as an incarnation of peace and Lincoln as an emblem of liberty, will no longer be entitled to talk of peace and liberty, inasmuch as they have allowed the passage of the anti-Japanese bill, so entirely incompatible with common sense, justice and humanity."

ANNIVERSARY SONG

(Air: "Clare's Dragoons.")

When over Dublin's burning town
Our tricolor first won renown
And went in blazing glory down
It did not fall boys, in defeat.
For Ireland's army fighting there
Did not surrender in despair,
But yielded, helpless ones to spare,
In hope another day to meet.

Chorus:

Yes, we shall have another day;
Our flag on high again shall wave,
And we shall cross the tyrants' way
And carve for tyranny a grave.

Then, rally boys, wherever found,
To sweep the foe from Irish ground,
And let your voices blended sound,
Your hope is in the coming day
When we shall muster, near and far,
To wage a last victorious war,
Till we shall hail our rising star
And Ireland free in proud array.

Chorus:

Yes, we shall have another day;
Our flag on high again shall wave,
And we shall cross the tyrants' way
And carve for tyranny a grave.

Here's to the day—we chant our song
Here's to the flag, 'neath which we throng
Here's to our legions, brave and strong,
Who march to challenge England's sway.
We burn to face another fight,
We'll die beneath our banner bright,
That God may send from dark of night
The glory of the coming day.

Chorus:

Yes, we shall have another day;
Our flag on high again shall wave,
And we shall cross the tyrants' way
And carve for tyranny a grave.

JUDGE PRAISES 'JURYETTES'

New Jersey Women Reach Verdict in Rent Case "Without Single Harsh Word"

New York, Nov. 5.—New Jersey's first complete jury of women was unstinted praise from Judge Peter Stillwell in the Bayonne District Court when it rendered a verdict on a tangled rent case after less than ten minutes deliberation, and without a "single harsh word being heard from the jury room."

"Ladies of the jury," said the court when the verdict was returned, "I compliment you on the dispatch with which you have reached your decision. Experience of many years on the bench has shown me that men in a case like that which you have settled would have wasted hours in fruitless dispute before coming to an agreement. With you there has been no such wasteful dalliance. Not a word of harsh words have been heard from the jury room. Yet I am confident that you did not decide this case unmindful of the responsibility of your trust. Again I congratulate you."

"INTUITION" PLAYS PART.

Later, when talking about the case which was that of Lichtenstein and Cohen versus Bennett, Mrs. Agel admitted that "intuition" played a considerable part in enabling the jurywitties to reach a decision promptly.

"You see," she said, "we judged of the case by the witnesses acted and the way the lawyers talked, rather than from what either of them said. The attorneys tried to "baby" us, which we did not like, and they tried flattery also, which was also a waste of time, for it only annoyed us."

Mrs. Agel admitted that the jury favored the two women in the case, Mrs. Lichtenstein and Mrs. Cohen, to pay a month's rent, alleging that her landlords had failed to keep their part of the contract, and her daughter Anna.

CHOSEN WOMEN TARDY.

"From the way Anna acted on the stand, we thought I'm sure she was a mother and herself was just, and decided accordingly," said Mrs. Agel.

At the start of the case it looked as though there was to be trouble. The case was called for 2 o'clock and at 2.20 four of the women jurors were still absent, and the judge was about to issue a bench warrant to find and arrest the tardy ones. They were followed by the constable as he left the courthouse and explained that having heard of the "laws delays," they had decided to forestall them by showing up in the courtroom on time.

Then, as soon as they were all in their seats and everything ready to proceed, the prison. It is said that he made considerable money through the sale of articles he has reclaimed from legal waste in the yard. Other articles he bought from fellow inmates for slight sums and then resold them at big profit.

It is recorded that five years ago "Corkey" was up for parole. The commissioners offered him his liberty if he would take them. It is further recorded that he wrote this message to the commissioners:

He didn't stand on his head, but he did remain dumb to officialdom, and completed his full term of twenty-five years, the only prisoner to do so in the history of the prison under the habitual criminal act.

GRAHAM SAVED FROM JAIL

Convicted Embezzler Is Given Eleventh-Hour Pardon by Vermont Governor

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 5.—Less than five hours after he had been sentenced to the State Prison for not less than five nor more than eight years, on the charge of embezzling State funds, former Governor Horace F. Graham was granted a pardon by Governor Percival W. Clement.

Governor Clement, in a letter notifying the State's former chief executive of his pardon, said that he was giving him his freedom because of the distinguished services the convicted man had rendered Vermont during his two years of office. Mr. Clement said he believed Graham had suffered enough and deserved to be pardoned.

AN 11TH HOUR PARDON.

The pardon was issued shortly before Graham's scheduled departure to begin his sentence. It was in every sense an eleventh hour reprieve.

Announcement of Governor Clement's action came upon the Capitol with almost as much surprise as the people of Vermont experienced when, during the term of his Governorship two years ago, Graham was charged with having misappropriated about $19,000 during his previous incumbency of the office of State Auditor of Accounts.

Graham was so pale and worn as he appeared in court that many former associates in Montpelier did not recognize him. When he was asked if he had anything to say he shook his head.

SHORTAGE OF $20,000.

A shortage of $19,000 in the accounts of Graham with the State—as State Auditor—was discovered early in August, 1918, while he was Governor.

When the former Governor was placed on trial early this year, Benjamin Gates, the present State auditor, testified that Graham told him two years ago that he took the money to prevent Carroll S. Page from forcing him into bankruptcy. Mr. Page is a United States Senator.

COX GOING TO EUROPE TO SEE BATTLEFIELDS

Dayton, O., Nov. 5.—Governor James M. Cox, late Democratic presidential candidate, will make a tour of Europe early in 1921, it was announced at his office here today. The trip will be accompanied by Mrs. Cox and "Baby Anne." They will visit all the principal battlefields of the great war.

Today the Governor returned to Columbus, where a great accumulation of executive work which he piled up during the strenuous days of the campaign awaited his attention. After disposing of the accumulated matters he will leave for the South, where he will be the guest of Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi and will hunt.

FORMER PRESIDENT TAFT IN UNITY FUND DRIVE

Former President William H. Taft, who has not entered actively into the presidential campaign, will enter another campaign—this time in a religious one—next Tuesday evening, when, as honorary chairman of the Unitarian religious, educational and financial forward movement, he will speak on "The Great Adventure" in the First Church in Boston, Berkeley and Marlboro streets. The campaign of which Mr. Taft is honorary chairman will open the following Thursday and last until November 21, by which time Unitarians of the United States and Canada hope to have raised $2,000,000 with which to conduct a purely religious campaign in the following five years.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN TO TRAIN 2 WEEKS AT AYER

Ayer, Nov. 5.—Companies A, H, C, D and F of the 2d Massachusetts Infantry, National Guard, under command of Major Howard Robbins, will arrive at this camp for fifteen days' intensive training. They will receive instruction and practice with the rifle and will be under the inspection of Lieutenant-Colonel H. A. Hannigan.

Wilson Cheered by 500 Democrats

Washington, November 5.—Cheered and applauded by 500 Washington Democrats who gathered in front of the White House, President Wilson smiled, waved his hand and partly arose from his wheel chair in delight.

Headed by John D. Costello, chairman of the district Democratic committee, the delegation, which included many women, paraded down Pennsylvania avenue. It was promptly admitted to the grounds, where, singing "The Star Spangled Banner" and other patriotic hymns and airs, it gathered in a semi-circle around the porch fronting on the avenue.

As the door opened and President Wilson was wheeled in his chair onto the porch the cheers redoubled.

VOLSTEAD WINS, RANDALL LOSES

California Voters Defeat Leader of Move to Make U. S. 'Dry' During War

Washington, Nov. 5.—Charles H. Randall, Congressman from California, who wrote war-time prohibition into the records of the country, was defeated for re-election Tuesday by V. F. DeWater, a Republican. Mr. Randall was originally elected as a Prohibitionist with Democratic endorsement.

It was he who in May, 1918, wrote an amendment to the agricultural bill which provided for war-time prohibition. Members of Congress who feared the "dry" forces did not dare vote against the amendment and it passed. That law was effective until January 16, 1920, when the eighteenth amendment became effective.

While Randall was defeated, Representative Volstead of Minnesota, father of the enforcement act, was returned. He is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and is scheduled to retain his position in the new Congress.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, believes that the forces of that body in Congress have been strengthened as a result of the election. Of the 425 members of Congress, he believes that at least 275 who had voted for the Volstead Act have been re-elected.

Latest returns indicate that Congressman Henry T. Rainey, Democrat, of Illinois, and Congressman W. T. Bland of Kansas City, Mo., Democrat, have been elected. The Republican roll has climbed to 285, as against 195 for the Democrats.

STATE OFFICIALS CONFER ON PENSION SYSTEM

Preliminary to its public hearings today, the joint special committee investigating the pension system held a conference with heads of State Departments for the purpose of securing their views upon the subject of pensions. These were verified, a number of the speakers favoring retention of the present system and others advocating changes of different kinds.

Those present at the conference included Commissioners John N. Cole of the Department of Public Works, Robert W. Kelley, Charities; Clarence Hobbs, Insurance; Payson Smith, Education; Henry Wells, Public Utilities; State Treasurer James Jackson, Dr. Bernard H. Carey, Department of Public Health; Richard R. Flynn, State Aid and Pensions; Theodore Wardell, Division of Accounts; Roswell Phelps, Bureau of Statistics, and the members of the State Board of Retirement and Teachers' Retirement Association.

LEGION PLEADS FOR MAIMED

Armistice Day Proclamation Urges Better Care for Men Wounded in War

A plea for health for the American soldiers and sailors who were disabled while serving their country during the war, is the principal thought contained in an Armistice Day proclamation, sent out by Captain James T. Duane, commander of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion. The proclamation follows:

ARMISTICE DAY PROCLAMATION,
November 11, 1920.

Just two years ago this day a message was sent broadcast to the peoples of the world, proclaiming that an armistice had been signed. This was a joyful message. One that the world had hoped and prayed for. It meant that the sacrifice of human lives and maiming of human forms was to cease.

WORLD REJOICED AT ARMISTICE.

The world rejoiced and in great public demonstrations, far greater than ever before seen, our American people expressed their joy, for they realized that their sons had been a dominating figure in the sudden collapse of the nations which had been ruled by the hand of Kultur. All America was happy, for shortly their boys would return and be hailed as the heroes they were. All the people of the country were just bubbling over with patriotism and a desire to express their appreciation of those things accomplished by the American boys.

The signing of the armistice found many files blank in the ranks of our regiments. These told a new story of a life given in sacrifice for a beloved country. By the supreme sacrifice of these boys the ideals that our dear flag represents were engraved deeper on the tablets of worldly deeds for mankind.

This date also found many of the boys left helpless, crippled and broken in health, lying in hospitals throughout Europe and the United States.

Preamble: "For God and country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes—to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent. Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, State and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

FORGOTTEN PROMISES.

How easily during the short years since the signing of that armistice have those who reveled and made merry on the word of the armistice almost completely forgotten their desires and promises for the heroes!

We can but perpetuate in sacred memory the thoughts of those real God-chosen heroes who now lie and are making sacred plots of French soil. Let their deeds, as the years go by, inspire us to a greater love for our God and country.

There are nearly 350,000 boys in hospitals, camps and under treatment for handicaps incurred by their service during the war.

Let us rejoice on this day, but, also let us renew our war-time spirit and turn our thought to these suffering lads, many armless, legless, sightless, and most pathetic of all, those who have lost the use of mind. Let Armistice Day inspire us to renewed desires to aid these boys. If the general public will assist the American Legion in this work which is paramount in its desires, then those boys will once more feel that life is worth while and that they are not forgotten the people whose land was made safe for democracy by their individual sufferings.

The Massachusetts Department desires once more to renew the pledge set forth in its preamble. We pledge ourselves for God and country.

Commander, Mass. Dept., American Legion.

OW COOLIDGE WON ONE NEW YORK VOTE

That the newspaper report of the reach of Governor Coolidge at Cargie Hall, New York, just before the election, evidently won over one voter the Republican party seems indied from a letter, written on election day, and just received by the Governor. It was from Edith R. Brown, living on Beacon Hill, and read:

"If one voter, sorely tempted to vote for Cox and Roosevelt, votes the Republican ticket this morning, it is because of the justice, patience and candor reflected in your speech at Carnegie Hall."

THREE LIQUOR CASES IN COURT AT CHARLESTOWN

Proprietors of two Charlestown saloons were arraigned in Charlestown Court. William F. Travers of Main street was convicted of keeping liquor for sale. The case was filed. James Donovan and John O'Keefe, also of Main street, and Sophie Erickson pleaded not guilty to liquor charges, and their cases were continued.

66 TO TESTIFY AGAINST BURKE

Prosecutor in Opening Details Events Attending Murder of Bartley

Skowhegan, Me., Nov. 5.—The familiar faces of the numerous Jackman residents who were present at the first trial of John A. Burke in February, were again seen in the courtroom.

Among them are Christopher Boyle, the clerk in Moose River House; Dr. J. M. Boothby, medical examiner of Jackman; Detective Joe Gardella, of Jackman, and his wife; Undertaker W. S. Moore and Ellsworth A. Piper of Jackman, administrator of Bartley's estate.

WIDOW IN COURT.

Mrs. Nelson W. Bartley, widow of the murdered man, made her first appearance at court accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Pearl Laws. Mrs. Bartley did not testify at the first trial.

The jury was completed within five minutes of the opening of court with the selection of George W. Brown, a Madison farmer, forty-six years old. He was the seventy-second man examined of the 120 called.

Wallace Jacobs of Pittsfield was appointed foreman by Judge Scott Wilson and the indictment of Burke read by Clerk W. F. Sawtelle.

County Attorney Edward F. Merrill, in his opening for the State gave a detailed account of circumstances attending the murder, of the departure of Burke and Bartley on their last ride together, starting between 5:15 and 5:30, going north by the drug store. No witness has told of seeing Bartley after that time until his dead body was found in the blowdown.

He told of John Bulmer being the next man to see Burke just after 6:00 when Burke wanted help because of a wound in his right leg, which came from a shot fired by Bartley, he claimed, near Burke's home. Burke claimed they had been only to his own home and not up the Canada road to Sugar Berth woods.

TELLS OF ILL FEELING.

Witnesses, said the county attorney, will tell of seeing the Ford car pass by Armstrong bars around 5:30, and back at the Bonsham road just after 6:00 when the shot which wounded Burke was heard.

Smuggling adventures of Burke and Bartley and the resulting ill-feeling when the liquor disappeared were portrayed, also Burke's disgrace when his tax money was gone and of Bartley's laughing at him. The notes given by Bartley, forged by Burke or otherwise, to settle the liquor deal—all good reasons why Burke should desire Bartley's removal, the county attorney set responsible for his downfall.

Henry Crowell of Skowhegan, one of the county commissioners and a civil engineer, was called as the State's first witness.

County Attorney Merrill called sixty-six witnesses to be sworn for the State.

Phillip Blair, former proprietor of the Muritta House at Jackman, was next called and told of Bartley's borrowing his car to go to Willie Elliott's, as he said, on the night of the murder.

David Mathieu of Jackman, Blair's chauffeur, told of taking the car with Bartley, to Moose River House, and described it. He saw it near Bonsham road next morning.

THIRD WOMAN DIES AFTER MERRIMACK CRASH

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 5.—The third death resulting from an automobile accident at Reed's Ferry, Merrimack, occurred early today when Mrs. George Danielson of No. 14 Putnam street, this city, died of injuries in the Notre Dame Hospital. The other victims of the accident were Mrs. Emile Huot of No. 14 Putnam street and Oliva J. Dupuis of Kelley street, also of Manchester.

Joseph Isabelle, driver of the machine in which the three victims were riding, was arraigned in the Manchester police court today charged with first degree manslaughter and with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

THEATRE MAN BIDS ON OWN AUTOMOBILE

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 5.—Al Couture, theatre manager of this city, is at the Canadian border today bidding on what was once his auto, said to have cost him over $6,000. The machine was, it is alleged, confiscated by the Canadian government as Couture was crossing the line with a valuable and somewhat fragile cargo. The machine was to be sold at auction.

The Log of the Esperanto

By EDWARD T. MILLET

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 5.—The night before the race was a merry one in the Halifax Hotel, the upper deck, the bridge and all parts of it were jammed with fishermen, their friends and others who came in to see the excitement.

"Love" Hines and his 350 pounds of avoirdupois was trying to do a shimmie in the hotel corridor with "Marty," who couldn't reach around his waist.

Jimmie McDonald, Steve Whitney, Roy Patten, John Mathison, Tom Benham, Tom Smith, "Ketchee" Brown and several others of the crew were having the time of their young lives trying to convince the Canadians that they must keep in training for the work ahead of them.

SUN BREAKS RED.

Some time between midnight and sunrise, the crowd thinned out, the Esperanto's crew going aboard for the night.

The morning sun of Saturday broke red across the Dartmouth shore, casting a beautiful glare of scarlet upon the waters of Halifax harbor.

The two schooners, alive with the activities of the crews, the Delawana, the home of the White dude, and the Gloucestermen in oils, were viewed by an early morning gathering of Canadians.

Straining at their hawsers, loose sails flapping idly in the breeze that puffed between the two piers, the schooners looked more like yachts ready for a race off sandy Hook.

"Ben Colby," the sailmaker hand on the Esperanto, was stating on the bridge deck, and and he was plying fast and furiously through canvas. Not a fast and furiously canvas. Not a stitch was missed by this expert at his trade, for to him rested the responsibility of good canvas and canvas that would stand up in the wind.

Tom Benham, Roy Patten and Ben Stanley were working on the mainsail halyards, each eager to have their work done well.

Aloft, Mickey Hall and Jimmie McDonald were at work on the topsails, each inspecting minutely every inch of rope and block, that no hitch would come while the shifts were being made for the tacks.

"MARTY" PLIED WITH QUERIES.

"Marty," appearing somewhat nervous, was surrounded aft by a curious crowd, all plying him with questions.

"Are you going to win?" "What do you think of the Delawana?" These, and a dozen other questions were hurled at him by the Canadians, but to them all, "Marty" had but the one answer and that was, "the best boat is going to win."

The U. S. S. Crowinshield, which had made the run over from Gloucester the night before, had just pulled out of her berth with about fifty Gloucester men on board, including Jack Perkins, Johnnie Johnson, Charlie Herbie, Ken Ferguson, Ed McIntyre, Abe Solomon, Marion Cooney, Dick Fisher, Joe McPhee, Howard Scammon and a bunch of skippers, prominent among who were Norm Ross, George Peeples and John McKinnon.

The lines on the competing fishermen were cast off, and the tugs pulled them from their berths to start for the getaway off the outer breakwater.

GREAT SENDOFF.

Whistles shrieked, voices yelled "Good luck" and there was a wonderful demonstration, but it was nowhere near the beautiful sendoff we got back home.

The Delawana came down the harbor, her sails off in the wind, sailing as gracefully as a bird.

She seemed to be holding the light wind well, but she wasn't carrying as well as the Esperanto working down from astern.

The Delawana made a starboard tack up toward the inner breakwater, squared away for the starting point and caught the gun on the mark, "Marty" following in his wake just a few seconds later.

The greatest of all sea races was on.

GERMAN FLAG ANGERS VETS

Demand Colors Be Hauled Down on First Vessel From Germany Reaching N. Y.

New York, Nov. 5.—The first German ship to enter New York harbor since 1914 with the German flag flying from her stern was the freighter Sophie Rickmers, just in from Hamburg. Her coming was made possible by a clause in the Versailles treaty. The vessel is of 4,863 tons.

The arrival of the Rickmers was the signal for considerable excitement among the longshoremen and dockworkers at the Army Base when the vessel docked. Many of these workers are ex-service men and they indignantly demanded of the German officers to haul down the German flag, threatening to do so themselves if their demand was not met.

As soon as the Rickmers had docked, guards were placed aboard and the officers and members of the crew were informed that they could not go ashore. This created mingled surprise and indignation aboard the vessel where officers could be seen excitedly running to and fro gesticulating vigorously while trying to explain to the American boarding party that American cews in German ports were allowed to go ashore. Some of the German officers and men are said to be former members of the German army and navy. No one but officials were allowed to go aboard the Rickmers.

WORCESTER TO WAR ON CIDER SELLERS

Worcester, Nov. 5.—Deputy Chief Thomas McMurray is preparing a campaign by Worcester police against the violation of the State law regarding the selling of cider. Today he instructed captains in the various precincts to visit all soda fountains where cider is sold and warn merchants to discontinue this practice.

President-Elect Going Duck-Hunting

Brownsville, Tex., Nov. 5.—President-elect Warren G. Harding will spend a good part of his vacation at Point Isabel, Texas, duck-hunting. Confirmation is contained in a message from his caretaker. The seat of the president-elect's hunting activities will be the lodge of E. D. Cresager, who seconded Harding's nomination.

The country about Point Isabel is ideal for duck hunting and at the time of Senator Harding's arrival the sport will be in full swing. The town is one of the oldest and quaintest American towns on the gulf coast, having a population of 400, mostly Mexicans.

17,000 CARLESS ON SOUTH SHORE

Hundreds of Commuters in Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook Forced to Walk

Seventeen thousand residents of the South Shore are today without car service following the action of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company in ordering trolley lines discontinued in Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Shipyard workers and shoe shop employes went to their work today in trains, jitneys and autos, and in many cases walked the entire distance when no other form of transportation was available. The jitney and train service from Holbrook to East Weymouth or the Fore River Company is 50 per cent. cheaper than the street car service. Aside from this the commuters are not crowded into cars that are already full.

CALL ACTION BLACKMAIL.

"Several thousand dollars was appropriated jointly by Braintree and Randolph," declared Mr. Avery, a member of the Braintree Board of Selectmen. "The voters expected that the money would be used for this line and did not expect that the trustees would order it closed because jitneys were operating in some other part of the town."

Blackmail is what several people termed the action of the street car company.

Louis Five, Braintree Councilman, assailed the trustees for their attitude. "There are five hundred people who travel on the jitneys every day," he declared. "They are satisfied with the jitney service, but they were not satisfied with the street car service given them with the one-man cars."

East Weymouth cars are operating so far as the East Braintree town line. Quincy cars are running to the town line on the other side of the town. Commuters were compelled to walk the remainder of the distance to their destination in Braintree.

EAST BRAINTREE HIT HARD.

Weymouth appropriated $70,000 for the repair and maintenance of several lines, one of which is the Braintree branch. Weymouth people are hit by the closing of the line more than Braintree car riders, as it is one of the heaviest traveled lines in the whole Quincy and Brockton system.

East Braintree residents who are separated by over four miles from the South Braintree jitney lines, are up in arms over the car situation. They declare that it is not fair to close their lines because a few Holbrook and Randolph folk use jitneys.

William May and Daniel E. Cain, two prominent Braintree men, protested to the company's officials, declaring that it was unreasonable for them to cause thousands of people to be left without car service.

CARMEN DEFER STRIKE VOTE

Fall River Workers Agree to Referendum on One-Man Trolley Controversy

Fall River, Nov. 5.—Acting on the recommendation of William B. Fitzgerald, first vice-president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, members of the Fall River Carmen's Union, who today were to have voted on the question of a strike, have deferred action until next Monday.

The carmen base their action for a strike on the company's demand that they handle the two-truck one-man type of cars.

Vice-President Fitzgerald referred his recommendation to a referendum vote. The referendum, which will be voted on Monday, follows:

"That the matter of proper safety appliances for double truck one-man car operation be taken to the Public Utilities Commission on the demand that the commission issue an order to the public trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway to properly equip such so as to warrant safe operation."

SOMERVILLE FIREMAN'S CASE BEFORE JUDGE

The review by the Somerville Court of the hearing conducted by the Somerville Board of Aldermen on the discharge of John C. Newcombe from the Somerville Fire Department has been concluded. Judge Malcolm E. Stuartevant announced he would take the case under advisement. Attorney Albert E. Hughes, arguing for the accused, declared that Newcombe's punishment was too drastic for his offense of refusing to scrub floors while recovering from acute indigestion.

Vose Player Piano

It would be well for one who is contemplating the purchase of a player to consider seriously the reputation of its maker—one should have confidence in the player of a firm that has proven the worth of its piano.

THE Vose Company, established nearly three-quarters of a century, has a nation-wide reputation for developing the piano in Art Tone and material values to its present high state of perfection.

"L" WILL NOT INCREASE FARES

Report, However, Shows Net Loss of $1,039,147 in Three Months

No increase in fare is contemplated by the Boston Elevated Railway, according to the report of the management, despite the fact that the cost of service per revenue passenger for the three months ending September 30 was 11.54 cents. The trustees, it is said, are all opposed to a fare higher than 10 cents.

General Auditor J. M. Moran declares, in a statement accompanying the report, that it is expected the results during the balance of the present year and the first half of next year will provide enough of an excess of receipts over expenditures to overcome the natural deficit.

The total "cost of service" was $9,154,342.89 and the total receipts were $8,115,195.55, the net loss for the three months being $1,039,147.31.

CAMBRIDGE CANDIDATES MUST FILE MORE NAMES

Candidates for Cambridge city offices will have to file more names for next month's elections, according to figures made public by City Clerk Brandon, and based upon the total of 39,092 votes cast at Tuesday's election. This year the number remains the same for Wards 1, 2 3 and 4, but for Ward 5, 77; for Ward 6, 62; Ward 7, 66; Ward 8, 66; Ward 9, 90; Ward 10, 64 and for Ward 11, 66 names are required.

$3,000,000 RUM PLOT BARED

100 Office-Holders and Policemen in Chicago Implicated, Say Federal Agents

Chicago, Nov. 5.—A $3,000,000 liquor plot in Chicago, which involves a hundred officeholders and policemen was revealed here when thirty-five saloonkeepers confessed to United States Attorney Clyne.

The statements complete a web of evidence, federal agents say, that will result in the conviction of many "higher-ups" and scores of lesser lights.

Mayor Thompson took a hand in the booze fight here and is preparing to clamp the lid on cabarets. Two of the most famous midnight cabarets in the city have been closed. Others will soon follow.

Government agents said that perhaps more than $3,000,000 has been raked by the whiskey ring in Chicago. The money has been used to buy forged permits and to bribe policemen, federal agents and deputy sheriffs.

Three policemen were suspended from the force when federal agents said they caught them in an attempt to rob a saloon of 300 gallons of liquor.

Delicious Laxative for Child's Liver and Bowels

Hurry mother! A teaspoonful of "California" Syrup of Figs today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If your child is constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good "physic-laxative" is often all that is necessary.

Children love the "fruity" taste of genuine "California" Syrup of Figs which has directions for babies and children printed on the bottle. Say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. Beware!

KENTUCKY VOTE STILL IN DOUBT

Cox Has Lead of 3,500 but C. O. P. Precincts Are Yet to Report

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5.—It is a battle royal between the Democratic and Republican parties for the electoral vote of Kentucky.

Today the complexion of the State's politics was still undecided, with the Republicans refusing to concede the State to Governor Cox.

Already the cry of fraud has been raised by the Democrats. They promise a searching investigation into the State election and have announced their determination to contest the indicated election of R. P. Ernest, Republican Senatorial candidate, if anything tangible is unearthed. Ernest is leading J. C. W. Beckham, incumbent, by 7,000 votes.

Governor Cox has still a lead of 2,500, which appeared might be sufficient to withstand the vote from the few precincts still to come, a great majority of which are Republican.

AUTOISTS PAY $3,000,000

Object to Statement of Chairman Jackson on Upkeep of State Highways

Automobilists in all parts of the State take exceptions to a statement by James F. Jackson, chairman of the Elevated Railway trustees, who declared at a dinner of the New England Street Railway Club that "automobilists should pay for the use of highways just as much as the street railways."

"The statement is absurd," said William A. Thibodeau, manager of the Automobile Legal Association, an organization representing several thousand automobile owners and operators. "The autoists do pay for the roads. The major part of the annual registration fee is used for this purpose. The average registration fee in Massachusetts is $12 to $15 and of his amount the State Highway Commission uses only about $2 for purposes other than road maintenance."

These facts were substantiated by the Massachusetts Highway Department figures, which showed that last year automobile owners in the State paid more than $3,000,000 toward the building and upkeep of the highways.

According to Mr. Jackson, the elevated road loses $2,000,000 a year because the company is forced to pay a share of the maintenance of the roads over which they operate. Most of this is on streets in Boston proper.

Asked whether the automobilists should be forced to help pay for the laying of the cobble stones between the car tracks, Mr. Thibodeau answered:

"Of course, not. It is not the wish of the auto driver that cobble stones should be used in the street. No driver will use that part of the road if he can help it."

TUMULTY BROUGHT COAL AND R. R. MEN TOGETHER

Washington, Nov. 5.—In connection with assertions of Franklin T. Miller, adviser to the Senate committee on re-construction made in New York that Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, was the chief director of operations in the coal crisis last Summer, it was stated at the White House today that Secretary Tumulty's sole connection with the negotiations was to bring together the railroad men and operators for a conference.

REPORT MARLBOROUGH DUCHESS IS TO REWED

London, Nov. 5.—After many delays the divorce suit of the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, has been set for a hearing next Tuesday, it was learned today. The Duchess plans to leave England immediately after she receives her decree and to live in France. It is reported in high society circles that the Duchess will marry Jacques Belsan, a friend of her father, the late William K. Vanderbilt.

SHOULD A HUSBAND FORGIVE AN ERRING WIFE?

Should a husband forgive the wife who has erred?

Mr. Kenyon, whose wife confessed on the witness stand that she had had a secret love affair with Dr. Tetlow, whom she afterwards shot, says he will forgive. American readers are for the most part evidently of his opinion.

The Boston American has received the following letters from readers who were impressed by Mr. Kenyon's magnanimity. Men and women both commend him. Their opinions generally show the trend of modern thought, which is more liberal toward woman than it used to be. Then it was always the wife who was expected to forgive.

Read what American readers think of the Kenyon case.

SHE PREFERS DEATH.

Editor American:

Answering "One Victim of Roxbury, Mass.," would say I certainly agree with him. Why didn't Mrs. Kenyon look ahead? Doings like that cannot last forever. It was not like the pitfalls and temptations of a young girl; it was the work of a mother with grown children. As to the one who said she would never do it again, I feel sure she will not get the chance. Death is much better than the life Mrs. Kenyon has before her.

L. H. M.

MUST FORGET, TOO

Editor American:

Should a husband forgive an erring wife? Not unless he can forget, as well. I am eighteen years old now, and have been married two years. My husband's business took him away a great deal at night, so I was alone most of the time. After we had been married three months I "picked up" several fellows. After about two weeks of this I decided that I wasn't doing the right thing, so told my husband. He was very angry, but forgave me. There wasn't any wrong done, except talking to strangers. He forgave me, but has never forgotten, nor has he let me forget. There isn't a day that goes by but what he reminds me of it. Mr. Kenyon should not forgive his wife, unless he can forget, too. If a man really loves his wife don't the readers think he could forgive and forget anything?

ONE WHO WAS FORGIVEN.

ALL HAVE SINNED

Editor American:

Being a constant reader of your paper, I would like to express my opinion on "Should a Husband Forgive an Erring Wife." I think very highly of Mr. Kenyon for his attitude in forgiving his wife, and I also think that the people who are condemning his stand are very narrow-minded, for did not the Lord say when He forgave Magdalene: "He who is without sin let him cast the first stone." If the people of today were called upon to cast the first stone, none would be cast, as there is no one, no matter how highly thought of and respected, that has never committed sin.

A SAILOR.

DOUBLE STANDARD THE CAUSE.

Editor American:

The double standard of living today is the only reason for such cases like the one of Mrs. Kenyon. She is not to blame because in her case Dr. Tetlow was the stronger. He knew in his heart that he was committing a wrong. He realized that if he went away from that poor unfortunate woman she would forgive him and in the occupation of her home would realize that the doctor's attitude was not love, but nothing less than brute passion. When two people meet and one is stronger than the other it seems that the stronger should use his or her brain and avoid a wrong impression in the beginning. A woman or man who takes advantage of the weakness of the other should be punished. It is selfishness that makes brutes out of so many of us.

There is so much happiness to be got for a mere nothing and yet men and women are spending millions and get nothing but recreation. Well, I hope you all wake up some day and say "What's the use, we should cease fighting for mere gold and find complete happiness."

D. E.

DESERTED THREE TIMES.

Editor American:

In my opinions I would not take Mrs. Kenyon back. I took my wife back on three different occasions all for the sake of my three small children, but I see from bitter experience that it doesn't pay to forgive such people. She was a woman that was brought up in a convent, and the second time she came back she got down on her hands and knees and begged with all her heart and soul for just one more chance for the children's sake. She was as white as a ghost. I then gave her the third chance, and what was the result? A year and a half later she broke up my home again and left an Italian baby in my hands. I am supporting it and treating it like my own. She left four children, ranging from two and a half years to eight years. So I say that it does not pay to forgive such women. If they were anything like our mothers were it would be different.

TO DRIVE 'REDS' FROM MEXICO

Agitators, Said to Be Behind Strikes, Are to Be Suppressed

By International News Service.

Mexico City, Nov. 5.—Warning that sterner measures will be adopted under the Obregon administration to stamp out Bolshevism in Mexico has been issued by the President-elect.

Action to rid the republic of Bolshevist agitators is under consideration. It is probable that some of the most troublesome disturbers will be deported.

Government officials allege that Bolshevist agitators are behind the strike of stevedores and coal miners. The government has taken direct action in the coal strike by seizing the mines and is now studying the demands of the men.

A statement issued in behalf of President-elect Obregon says the new administration will welcome men of all nations who want to come to Mexico to help build up the country. It added:

"The door always will be open for industry and capital. But there should be a strong barrier against idle agitators who seek only to stir up trouble. Mexico must be cleaned of the discontent element as a step towards real progress."

One of the most active agitators in Mexico is Lynn W. Gale, who is said by government officials to be an American. He came to Mexico when the United States entered the world war. Gale published a small newspaper in which he attacked President Wilson. His source of funds was a mystery, but it was reported that he secured them from German sympathizers.

Gale is a thorn in the side of the new government and there is talk of deporting him to the United States.

Much of the turbulence in the State of Yucatan is attributed to Bolshevists. Fighting has been in progress between rival political factions.

The clean-up has extended to the army. Lieutenant-Colonel Filiberto Villareal has been reduced in rank for his Bolshevist sympathies.

PREPARING FOR CITY'S GIRL SCOUT DRIVE

Leaders of the Massachusetts Girl Scout organizations are making final preparations for the membership drive next week. Those actively interested are Mrs. James J. Storrow, State Commissioner of the Girl Scouts; Charles F. Weed, vice-president of the First National Bank and treasurer of the Girl Scout week finances; Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, former dean of Simmons College; Professor Charles W. Holmes, dean of the Harvard School of Education, and Odin Roberts.

LABOR DEMAND CUT 22 P. C.

Many Applicants Unable to Fill Positions That Are Being Offered

Big declines in the demand for skilled and unskilled labor are shown in the figures for October, made public in the report of G. Harry Dunderdale, superintendent of the public employment office, No. 8 Kneeland street.

Records show a decrease of 22 per cent. in orders from employers as compared with those in September, and 42 per cent. when compared with the orders of October, 1919.

While requests for labor were falling off demand for jobs increased. An attendance of applicants, taxing the daily each week to its capacity, the highest record of any month for two years.

The figures show also Mr. Dunderdale, that many of the applicants were not able to accept positions proffered, as not in their line. Closing of factories, or part time work in plants, resulted in a great increase in applications at the office. The majority of these, however, were physically unable to accept jobs calling for hard manual labor.

The call for mechanics of all sorts was strong early in the month, particularly in the shipbuilding industry but fell off considerably as the month progressed.

The demand for plumbers, plasterers and carpenters for Labor said the city was but little response, men refusing to leave town either to take the jobs or those reported to be very good with little or no demand for labor.

The demand for unskilled labor, very active for three years, has fallen considerably, and the wages offered show signs of dropping still further.

When trouble is experienced in meeting the normal demand for boys, as the ages seem stricken with the wanderlust and always searching for more money," says the report.

GIVES PARTY IN HONOR OF ENGAGED COUPLE

Twenty guests attended a party at the home of Egbert E. Warfield, No. 244 Corey street, West Roxbury, in honor of the engagement of Ralph T. Greene, No. 9 Melrose street, Arlington, and Miss Viola E. Forsyth, No. 9 West Roxbury street, Milton. The house decorations were pink and white. Mr. Greene is purchasing agent and financial man for the Westmore-Savage Company, of which firm Mr. Warfield is a member.

COMMUTERS SEE REAL DRAMA

Man Stops Wife From Taking Train With Baby; All Are Reconciled Later

Newtonville commuters were treated to a bit of real-life drama and a domestic squabble that both fair to end seriously was quieted only by the arrival of the police patrol when Fred Gore of No. 470 Cliffords attempted to prevent his wife and two-year-old son from "going home to mother."

The one-act comedy was enacted at the Newtonville station just before a New York express train was due. Mrs. Gore arrived with Freddie the [illegible] of the boy and prepared to take the train for New York. Mr. Gore [illegible] apparently [illegible] but [illegible] that a suitcase [illegible] to go home to mother" and [illegible] disappeared.

When he tried to take Freddie away from his mother Newtonville commuters thought a kidnaping scene was being pulled off for their benefit. Several men attempted to sense the husband and someone put in a call for the police.

When the patrol charged up to the station the couple gladly boarded it to get away from the crowd that had gathered, although the police would take no action in the case. They were taken to the police station and after everything had become quiet were apparently reconciled.

FULLER SAILING FOR FRANCE SATURDAY

Lieutenant-Governor-elect and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller and Mr. Fuller's mother will sail Saturday for France, planning to return before Christmas. Mr. Fuller is going forward to Paris in Strassburg on the 25th of November, which is the second anniversary of the entry of the French troops. Two years ago Mr. Fuller was in Strassburg when French troops entered for the first time since 1870.

TAP MANAGER FINED $100 IN CAMBRIDGE

When Myer Frimmerman, who operates a "club" at Portland and Bristol streets, Cambridge, was arraigned before Judge Walcott today on two charges of selling intoxicating liquor and of "keeping and exposing liquor for sale" he was fined $100 on the first charge and found not guilty of the second. He was accused of having sold a half-pint of whiskey to officers for $4.

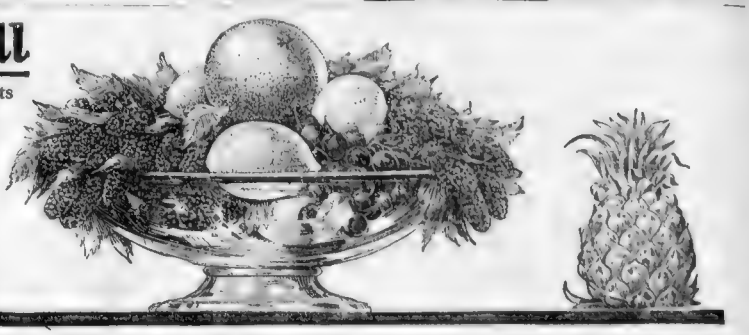
Jiffy-Jell
Real-Fruit Desserts
Flavors in Vials



One Dessert Free

A Real-Fruit Jiffy-Jell Dessert—At Your Grocery This Week

Dessert Spoons

We supply dessert spoons, teaspoon size, in this exquisite pattern of Wm. Rogers & Son AA silverplate. Guaranteed 20 years. No advertising on spoons. For the first spoon send 2 Jiffy-Jell trade-marks, plus 10 cents for postage and packing. Then we will offer you balance of a set.

This week we will buy you a Jiffy-Jell dessert. Get it from your grocer and we will pay him for it. See offer below.

It will be Loganberry Jiffy-Jell—our finest berry flavor. It is free to you if you will buy one other flavor with it.

For Every Woman

This offer is made to old users and new. It is made to the lovers of Jiffy-Jell to start the new season. It is made to new users to let them know the Jiffy-Jell delights.

Every home should now put in a variety of Jiffy-Jell. People need fruit daily. Here you have eight fruits on call, at trifling cost, with a moment's trouble.

Fruit in Bottles

Jiffy-Jell alone contains the real fruit essence, in liquid form in glass. We crush the fruit, condense the juice and seal it. A bottle of this rich fruit essence comes in every package.

Thus you get a real-fruit dainty, not a mere fruit taste. You get the delights and healthfulness of fruit.

Fruit in Plenty

You get a wealth of fruit. We use, for instance, half a pineapple to flavor one Jiffy-Jell dessert. The fruit is crushed in Hawaii—fruit too ripe to ship.

Ten Flavors in Glass Vials

A bottle in each package

Mint — Lime — Cherry
Raspberry — Loganberry
Strawberry — Pineapple
Orange — Lemon — Coffee

Loganberry
Our finest berry flavor. A wealth of this crop-dessert fruit juice comes in the bottle—sealed.

Bottle in Package
Each fruit flavor is condensed fruit juice, and each comes sealed in glass.

Made with style—H—mold

Dessert for Six
A package serves six in mold form, or 12 if you whip the jell. And it usually costs less than the fruit alone would cost.

Jiffy-Jell
Real-Fruit Desserts
With condensed crushed fruits in liquid form in vials

So with all fruits. Each bottle contains the essence of much ripe fruit condensed. The fruit alone would often cost you more than the whole dessert.

Jiffy-Jell comes ready sweetened. It comes acidulated with lemon or grape acid. You simply add boiling water, as directed on package, then the fruit essence from the vial, and let cool. Thus, in a few coats, you can serve a real fruit dainty, rich in fruit—light, healthful and delightful.

Millions of homes now enjoy it. You also will do so when you once compare it with the old-style gelatin desserts.

One-Week Offer

For this week only we make this offer. Buy from your grocer one or more packages. Then present the coupon and he will give you a package of Loganberry Jiffy-Jell free. We will pay him for it.

Serve it as your treat—enough for six. Accept this offer, then use the circle trade-marks to get the molds you want. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

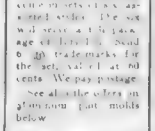
For Salad Jell Jiffy-Jell in lime fruit flavor makes a tart, green salad jell. Serve with your salads or mix the salad in before cooling. Then you have a zestful salad loaf. Or mix in meat scraps and make an appetizing meat loaf.

For Mint Jell Mint flavor makes a green mint jell to serve with meats, hot or cold. Or serve as an appetizing side-dish.

Gifts to users

Set of Six Dessert Molds

These [illegible] dessert [illegible] come in sets of six [illegible] assorted styles. The set will secure a [illegible] page of [illegible]. Send 6 @ trade-marks for the set, [illegible] 10 cents. We pay postage. See all the others on aluminum [illegible] molds below.



Jiffy-Cup

An aluminum half-pint measuring cup. Fill twice with water to dissolve one package Jiffy-Jell. Use as a standard cup in all recipes. Send 2 trade-marks for this cup, postpaid.

Other Gifts to Users

Send us the @ trade-marks in the circle on the front of each Jiffy-Jell package. Send 6 for any pint mold or the Set of Six. Send 2 for the Jiffy-Cup or 2 and 10 cents for the spoon.

....Style—B—Heart-shaped.
....Style—C—Fluted.
....Style—D—Salad mold.
....Style—E—Pinnacle mold.

FINED $50 FOR SELLING LIQUOR IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Nov. 5—Three warnings from the police to cease selling liquor apparently not enough for Joe Marcus, proprietor of a pool room at No. 244 Chestnut street, according to testimony in District court here when Marcus was fined $50 on a charge of illegal sale. Patrolman George Sawyer, who arrested Marcus, said the latter made a sale to him on Oct. 2 and that a fine would be taken in the poolroom. Marcus was convicted.

THEFTS OF OVERCOATS REPORTED IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Nov. 5—Authorities of this city have appealed to the police to be on the lookout for the thefts of clothing and efforts from members. An organized band of shopping gangs has gathered valuable loot from clothing stores, according to information received at headquarters. In one instance a coat owner who had placed a coat valued at $100 in a low room a stranger came and offered clothing from the rear. Other coats seem to be particularly desired.

Leopold Morse Co.

Our large sales in the face of mark-downs elsewhere prove that the MORSE Policy of value based on replacement costs is winning out.

It means that the men of Boston are quick to grasp the opportunity to buy clothing from a maker recognized from coast to coast for the high quality of his product.

It means that the price at which MORSE-MADE CLOTHES are offered has proved to be lower than even the flood of mark-downs that catch many an unwary dollar.

It proves the unchallenged fact that day in and day out, MORSE offers at regular "maker-to-wearer" prices the kind of clothes you want at the price you want to pay.

Whether you spend

$30—$40—$50—or $60

or whatever you feel you want to put into an overcoat you will buy from MORSE a measure of value so great that you save $5.00 more than other clothiers honestly feel is a rock-bottom price.

Take a look at our windows—They contain 83 individual styles in winter overcoats, embodying all the new ideas in snappy raglans, storm coats with deep collars, dressy coats and foreign fleecy great coats.

THOMPSON PLEADS FOR THE TEACHERS

PROS LIKE SEASIDE COURSE

Alex Campbell and Ted Ray Loud in Praise of Lido Beach

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Here is news.

The Britons have found a golf course in the United States that resembles the seaside courses of the old country, and right away they would like to have the United States Golf Association stage the National open championship on this American seaside links.

The new find is the Lido Beach course in the metropolitan district over which Ted Ray, the British open champion, played the final round of his tour. Ray, on that praise Lido enough. And when you consider Ray is one of the greatest golfers that ever stepped over a course, that praise is worth while.

Also played over Lido Beach on day Monday and Tuesday was Alex Campbell, who had been seeing just such a course. When I try at Lido, says Alex, play at one of the few real seaside golfing. America's first and only.

"Lido Is Golf," Both Pros Assert

This will be pretty tough information for the members of thousands of American golf clubs who have never had much to do in battling their way through golf courses. They will weep when they read what Ted and Alex say about Lido. Ted and Alex declare:

"Lido is golf. It is none of your park or inland kind, but real golf, seaside golf."

So they say are

Ted says the United States ought to hold its next championship on Lido and set the date in October. Under these conditions he feels certain a large number of British professionals would come over and he feels that one of the number would win.

British Seaside Golf Not Only Standard

It is interesting to have expert opinion that Lido is something over here to approach the seaside golf course of Britain but the United States was well provided with championship links long before Lido jumped up and grabbed off several columns of publicity. It is entirely wrong to assume that British seaside golf is the only standard of perfection and that the only real test of golf to be found here is in a course which approaches that foreign standard.

Seaside golf is one sort of test, but it is not one whit more exacting or interesting than American inland golf as provided by numerous of our courses. Many of these British seaside courses become exceedingly commonplace in the series of wind swept sand dunes covered with burned-out bent, with square, flat greens. High scores on these courses can be accounted for by long distances and wind.

No Need for America to Imitate Britain

The United States has progressed a long way in the matter of golf course construction. There is no need of turning back and attempting to duplicate the championship courses on the other side, for our own are quite sufficient. Upon them we have developed players who rank with the greatest in the world, and in amateur golf we have taken the undisputed lead.

HARVARD SCOUT DECLARES AGAINST NUMBERING FOOTBALL MEN

JIMMIE KNOX TAKES ISSUE WITH CRIMSON EDITORIAL

The cry for numbers for football players is largely from an ignorant, selfish, parsimonious press, as well as from a few selfish teams, declares Jimmie Knox Harvard strategist and second team coach His tirade is the result of an editorial published in the Crimson, the Harvard daily, which spoke in favor of numbers

It seems is numbered for tomorrow's game and the Crimson thought it would be nice to have Harvard numbered too But just hear what Knox has to say on the subject in his own rather way the players wouldn't wear numbers. The letter I leave

Not Helpful to Spectators

"As a player even a third degree football conversationalist I have followed football continuously for a long period of time I was early bedecked and have frequently been quite forcibly impressed with the fact that an onlooker cannot tell a player off the field of play for we all look alike without our numbers Now we are presenting ourselves on the field of play I am certain they say too much that anyone who attempts to say anything is impelled to [illegible] in order to identify who said such and such a thing at such and such a time of [illegible] after the game [illegible] to the [illegible] was quite worthy to be some number and the name of some player the ball would have missed enough to make it give up in disgust any attempt to check up on the progress of the ball with the end of the program in sight I do not believe that the suggestion, at all aloof from the standpoint even of the spectator

"Secondly the cry which has reached you comes very largely from the newspapers This is purely a selfish cry resulting from the fact that the vast majority of newspapers call upon writers who are in no way qualified to handle the subject They are men whose forte may be baseball, boxing, golf, or some other detailed subject The newspapers seem unwilling to bear the expense of securing expert writers and sending them to various prominent football games will qualify them to write an accurate account of the proceedings at the game I see no reason why anyone should object to the parsimonious or unscientific methods of the newspapers regarding the [illegible] men now Some of the stronger exponents of the suggestion are teams who are using [illegible] and notify selves reasons What need, in turn, should be given to them"

Numbering Would Increase Coach's Labors

"A careful analysis of the situation should convince anyone that it is not possible for any coaching staff to develop a brand new offense annually which is sound, scientific and effective The general development of football will be retarded, if each year must find the work of the previous year thrown into the discard and an attempt made to start anew Every team in the country has a running play in which the fullback carries the ball through some point in the line It is not every team, however that has so far perfected the play of the other ten men that the fullback can gain consistently at one or any point in the line In other words it is the finer points which have been perfected as a result of one experience and deep thought which give any real assurance of success Why may I ask, should any team be put in a position of aiding its opponents either to duplicate a perfected offense or find a defense against it, when it is only superior work in the minutest details which attains the desired results. I have talked with innumerable coaches and football players identified with Harvard opponents of the past, who endeavored to describe various plays which Harvard has used only to find that [illegible] attention to that part had left them still in the dark as [illegible] details of what made a play successful

Harvard Record Speaks for Itself

"I think, without boasting, that the Harvard football record of the past ten years has attained sufficient success to earn for those who have given their time and thought to its development, all reasonable protection and I do not believe that it is necessary for Harvard in order to be good sportsmen, to discard the results of this senseless effort A football play cannot be patented, but I see no reason why the product of the brain should not be given all reasonable safeguards

"Therefore if the suggestion to number players is distinctly doubtful in the practical side—in largely the result of suggestions from sources that need but slight attention—and is definitely against the best interests of the best teams, why should Harvard adopt a plan which means a tremendous amount lost and a very little gained.

COMISKEY TAKES CRACK AT JOHNSON

New York Nov 5—Charles A Comiskey has answered Ban Johnson's battle bugle by an attack on Ban's own inactivity regarding the 1919 world series "frame" and a statement of the work he himself had done to get to the root of the matter

Comiskey declares that for months he strove to get to the inside of the affair and up to the time of the Cook county Grand Jury investigation he spent more than $10 000 in the effort.

He said that it was he who paid the fare of many of the Grand Jury witnesses and it was Alfred Austrian, his attorney, who obtained the confessions which resulted in the indictments

He says that he placed the facts before Johnson but nothing came of it.

When a Girl Marries

Story of the Interesting Happenings in Life of Young Married Couple

By Ann Lisle

Whose Present Serial Has Won a Nation-Wide Success.

Copyright, 1920, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

ON the morning of the gala day when Father Andrew was to I suggested to Jim that I and I should stop at their office for him and Neal at about five, and that we'd then proceed to the station as a reception committee.

"Nothing doing!" said Jim, glancing up absent-mindedly from the morning perusal of the stock quotations. "You and Phoebe go by yourselves. My brother of yours go alone!"

"Why, Jim!" I gasped, putting into the two words all of my astonishment at his curt refusal. But as I looked and his face came back to attention to Father Andrew.

He only grunted, slumped down in his chair and delved deeper into the column that appeared more important than anything else in the world. Then Phoebe came to the rescue.

"Jim and I both think that you and Neal have a complete right to your first moments with that adorable father of yours. So we're going to let you have 'em unmarred by any Harrisons standing around acting as 'extras.' She said that when you get back for the celebration dinner you'll find us waiting with 'Welcome' on the mat and our faces. Let not it go by, Jim Jeemes?"

"Sure!" grunted Jim without looking up. "Anne got me before you spoke, though, kiddie."

I flashed Phoebe a smile, however, that was equal parts gratitude and astonishment. Love was making Phoebe grow up and understand how a man can be part a woman, even when he's thinking most tenderly of her.

Giving a Party

When Neal heard of the arrangement he insisted on giving Phoebe a little tea party to make up for shutting her out of our old home week, as he put it. So at 5 o'clock I left the house alone to meet Neal at the station information booth. Lyons had orders to be at the station with the car at 6 o'clock, but I preferred that he go to the office to call for Jim and take me downtown. Jim's ankle needs a good bit of coddling, but no woman's figure can stand too much of it.

Just as I got down to the sidewalk a long gray car drew up to the curb in front of our apartment building and out stepped Sheldon, the white carnation in his buttonhole and the jauntiest of smiles on his face. At sight of me he started almost irritably.

"Caught with the goods!" I chided, shaking my head with the smiling good nature which had my Andrew's near approach always brings. "But Phoebe's not at home."

The look of irritation on his face changed to one of amusement.

"You might have told a white lie for—the lady I was looking for," he said. "Hop in and let me take you for a spin in the park. We once had a happy afternoon together. Remember?"

"You can't talk even to me without getting a ballad note into your voice, can you, Shelly?" I asked.

But I can't remember this afternoon. I have to meet Neal at the station where we're meeting my father at 6."

Sheldon glanced at the watch on his wrist.

"That gives us almost an hour," he wheedled. "Just wait till I run in and leave a message and we'll be off."

Shelly Objects

You can trust me with it, and even though I don't approve of it myself, I'll give it to Phoebe—in Neal's presence," I replied pointedly.

Nothing doing," laughed Shelly, and disappeared for a moment within the portals of the building.

He came out in a mood that held a bit of amusement but more of chagrin. Jumped me into the car and headed toward the park. We drove in silence for a few moments, but when once we turned into a shady path hung with drooping trees, I determined to make the most of my opportunity.

"Shelly, I wasn't fair to you the other night," I said. "I was in old friend of the Harrisons and dear ones, and I never want you to feel less than welcome in John's house."

"Thank you, lovely lady," replied Shelly, with one of his auto long glances. "This needn't have said a word. When you came along for a ride, I knew it meant your faith had been restored."

"My faith that you'd never do anything wrong intentionally, I declared rashly. "But please, Shelly, err on the sober side. I don't want any handsome bachelor turning my little Phoebe's head."

"Did you come along just to tell me to cut out the desperate attentions I'm showing your brother's fiancee?" asked Sheldon dryly.

"Sure did," I laughed, wondering how the truth would sound to Sheldon. "The lady killer," as Neal once labeled him.

"Well, quit worrying about the kid. She's nothing in my young life. And tell her to quit worrying about my mad infatuation for Virginia."

Saying this, Shelly turned and dashed so madly back through the curving paths of the park that the whish and whir of the wind we whirled up made conversation impossible. As we approached the exit and headed for the street which would take us to the station, Sheldon slowed down abruptly and around to face me.

"It never occurs to you, does it, wise little Lilac Lady, that there are other women besides Phoebe living in the building where you dwell?" he asked.

"Don't try to tell me that you came to see me!" I protested.

"I won't," he replied, a whimsical smile playing a boyish curve to his sensuous lips. "It might have been Mrs. Colby."

It might have been," I repeated with scorn for the evasion. "But even you couldn't shift more often than an April weather vane. I know it wasn't Val."

"Oh—so you know, do you?" said Shelly in a tone of relief. "Then what's the use of my saying anything more?"

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Hill

HILL

RACIAL ORIGIN—English.

SOURCE—Locality, also occupation.

THIS is a most widespread group of family" names, the one most frequently met with being Hill, with probably Hillman, Hull and Hilyer next in order. There are all of them English names, and all trace back to an old Anglo-Saxon word which has come down to us almost unchanged, and is in as common use today as it was in the reign of Alfred the Great. The word is (just what you think it is) "hill."

But all of the family names in this group have not developed from this word in the same manner.

The name of Hill, as well as Hull, is in the vast majority of cases a mere contraction of the old description phrase "at the hill" or "of the hill," used to designate persons who happened to dwell on or near such eminences. In the varied spellings of the late Norman days, the surname occurs as "de la Hill," "de la Hull," "de la Helle" and "atte (at the) Helle."

With the other variations another method of development is responsible for the modern names. This word "hill," or "hull" was also used figuratively to denote a roof, and also for the verb "to roof." An abstract from an ancient document reads, "Whyt cley and red for to make crokkes (crokes) and other vessels and barned (burnt) tyyl (tile) to hele houses and churches." Anglo, Wicklyffe, in the translation of one Bible passage, says: "The schip (ship) was hilid (hilled or covered) with wavis."

The words "hilyer" and "hillman," therefore, were descriptive of occupation, which explains why these family names in their varied spellings are not within the old records in such forms as "Roger le Hillyer," "Ivo le Heller" and "John le Hilman."

Tomorrow—Henderson.

The Adventures of Ann

By Hal Coffman

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

THE big yacht's anchor splashed and the chain rattled as she slowly came to her mooring. Ann, Betty and the mysterious woman stood watching it all, the busy sailors running to and fro, making everything fast and shipshape, but so far there had been no sign of Harwood.

The other guests of Harwood were idling under the awning in the stern, talking and laughing, with now and then an occasional glance at the mysterious woman and Ann and Betty. These latter stood by the companion way waiting to be taken ashore.

As they were leaving one of the stewards handed the mysterious woman a note. It was from Harwood, and said: "Of course, you realize that after your words of last night you can expect no further help from me. Also, I shall put a guard with you if it takes me the rest of my life to do it."

The mysterious woman read it and then angrily tore it up and scattered the pieces into the water. Turning to Ann she said with a sad little smile:

"Girlie, it's a great life, isn't it? But the future sure looks a bit foggy to me." Ann and Betty put an arm about her as they descended into the tender waiting alongside. Ann's father was silent while Claire—who had not heard the rumpus the night before—wondered why they had returned so soon, but said nothing.

Ann was glad to get ashore, but the party that had started with so much laughter and anticipation looked very forlorn, indeed, as they climbed upon the dock. The motor boat that had brought them ashore speeded back to the yacht, was hoisted into the davits and the big pleasure boat was soon under way again down the harbor. As Ann turned to look at the beautiful boat for the last time she was certain she saw Harwood standing at the rail looking toward them.

Smart Clothes for Children

By Rita Stuyvesant

SNUG top coats, buttoned up close to the throat, jaunty sport models, swagger overcoats and adorable hats and leggings are now in order for the outdoor child. Ruddy little faces peep out from under fur caps, while others are framed by rich dark velvet bonnets.

For general wear for a six-year-old girl try a coat of reindeer bolivia cloth with a smart collar of beaver, double breasted, with a broad belt and two pockets with flaps. The coat may be shortlined and faced with a flowered silk lining. Topped by a turban of beaver, with shapey ear-laps, this makes a fetching little costume.

The woman with an eye to beauty will appreciate for her brunette child a coat of burgundy-duvetyn, with collar and cuffs of taupe squirrel. Such a coat was recently shown with the skirt portion rather full and lightly belted at the waist. The collar took the form of a shawl effect, which could be buttoned up on windy days. The lining was of a rich taupe silk.

Tweed lends itself admirably to play times and fashions a swagger coat with great choker collar and big patch pockets. This model shows the raglan sleeves and is quite loose, to be worn over a sweater if desired. The collar may be opened and laid flat on warm days or turned over and buttoned high about the throat. This coat has no belt, but swings loosely from the shoulders.

Although these coats are reasonably priced at the children's shops, considering the excellent workmanship and high quality of materials, yet if one has a heavy skirt, short cape of suit that is no longer wearable it may be utilized nicely for a top coat for the smaller member of the family.

Recently I saw a most successful little coat from tobacco brown bolivia cloth, made from a hip-length cape of mother's that had become hopelessly out of date, although the material was not a bit worn.

And the linings that are seen on sturdy little lads wherever youngsters assemble for play, dark brown soft leather, shiny black ones, ones cut from duvetyn or pom-pom cloth to match the coat and hat.

The Bride Who Would Forget

AND WHAT HAPPENED WHEN HUBBY REBELLED

By Ruth Logan

BETH and Kenneth Blair got along very nicely indeed. Beth did just as she liked and Kenneth made the best of it.

When a woman is as pretty as Beth it's difficult for a man to fly into a rage because every little detail about their home isn't quite as satisfactory as might be desired. Beth looked exactly as sweet and alluring in a short gingham apron as she did in georgette crepe. No matter what went wrong with the day's establishment, Beth never found it worthy of a frown.

"Will you have the plumber come today and fix that leak in the bath pipe, dear?" asked Kenneth as he kissed her preparatory for a hasty advance at the office.

"Yes, and I'll tie a string around my finger."

It took Kenneth six minutes to tie the string around Beth's finger. He knew she wouldn't think of the leak or the plumber again until he reminded her the next morning. And she didn't. But he forgave her when he remembered that after he left she cut her hand on a broken bottle and had to take off the string.

"Will you pay the grocer's bill today?" he asked the next morning.

I just mustn't forget that!" said Beth. "I'll do it on my way to the dressmakers."

The dressmaker called to postpone the appointment, and, of course, Kenneth couldn't have expected Beth to make a trip downtown for the purpose of paying an account.

"Mr. Townsend is in town, dear. I want you to drop in at the hotel and call on his wife this afternoon. It means a great deal to me." This three days after the affair of the grocer's bill.

"I'm making a new dress," smiled Beth. "It will be done at noon and I shall wear it to call upon Mrs. Townsend."

"Now what do you think of that!" laughed Beth, "I got started working on my dress and I completely forgot about it."

Kenneth sat down in a chair and took Beth on his knee. "I don't want to be cross, dear, but my patience is giving out. It doesn't make any difference what I ask you to do you are sure to forget it. Can't you charge your mind with anything? None of these things has been of vital importance, but can't you see how indolent you are becoming?"

Beth could see it plainly. With two round, soft arms about his neck she promised to remember every single thing he said from that time on. The next day she forgot that he wanted sweet corn for dinner and had string beans instead.

Kenneth said nothing, but he sighed and drew away from the table. I'm going to give you one more chance, Beth, before I get actually cross and scold you. The insurance on the bungalow is due tomorrow. It must be renewed without fail. You will remind me in the morning to drop in and see Mr. Larrimore?"

During breakfast Kenneth waited for his wife to remind him of the insurance. He spoke of the recent fire that had rendered some friends temporarily homeless; he read snatches from the morning paper in which several guests of a hotel were rescued from the flames; he discussed a business matter in which he mentioned Mr. Larrimore's name three times. But Beth had apparently forgotten all about fire insurance and her promise to her husband. Kenneth hastened from the house and pretended that he had forgotten to kiss her.

Watching him swing down the walk, Beth smiled broadly. Later in the day, Kenneth thought she'd call him up and tell him she hadn't forgotten, but was only teasing him. But she didn't telephone him.

When he returned home nothing was said by either of them in regard to renewing the insurance on the house. They went to a card party and returned home late. Kenneth smoked a cigar in the library before retiring. The cigar rolled off the tray and nestled in a rug. The rug began to burn and the flames spread rapidly to the window curtains. When Beth awoke the house was filled with smoke. She tugged frantically at Kenneth and began to scream. He seized her in his arms and carried her into the yard. The fire department came promptly, but a great deal of damage had been done before its arrival, and the furniture was ruined by the water.

Kenneth took Beth to a neighbor's home. She was hysterical. He was as white as a ghost.

"Are you going to scold me this time, Kenneth?" she asked him trembligly.

"No Beth. It's as much my fault as yours. I should have remembered it myself. We're out a nice little sum of money. We'll have to save and work hard—to rebuild. Don't cry. It's all right. I told you it was as much my fault as yours. Perhaps a man ought not to expect a pretty little wife to bother her head remembering things."

"What is it, honey?" he asked gently.

"I did remember. I haven't thought of a thing but insurance all day. I went down at 2 o'clock this afternoon and renewed it. I was afraid you'd forget it, so I did it myself."

"Beth, you wonderful girl! Did you really remember?"

"Yes, I did. I never forget really important things. And, Kenneth Blair, don't ever let me tell you again not to leave a lighted cigar in the tray."

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

THERE is one new note of fashion which with glad acclaim I hail; I have heard the daily ration comes now a la dinner pail. Yes, I hear folks are returning to the mode of days gone by, and they are no longer spurning husky slabs of apple pie. For a time each worker trotted to some gilded marble hall; he could easily be spotted; he was not at home at all. He was thin and he was pallid, he was also faint and weak, so he ate an ounce or salad on a table made of teak. He had worked since eight that morning, he was hungry as a bear, and his tummy gave him warning that he needed roast beef rare. And he scanned the menu feeling that a meal would put him right, but the prices sent him reeling, though they were quite out of sight! Ninety cents for mashed potatoes, two whole dollars for a steak, and six bits for sliced tomatoes, these sums made his poor head ache. So he ordered one small salad and a mere soupcon of pie, and with these he sat and dallied 'till the sad noon hour wore by. He was fond of stylish dining, so he let it go at that, and you never heard him whining just because he wasn't fat. But at last he has decided that he doesn't care to pay just to keep the town provided with a beautiful cafe. So he quit the stylish luncheon that has kept him weak and pale, and he takes his lunch with reason from a well-filled dinner pail!

Loved by a Homely Man

BUT THIS GIRL OBJECTS TO MARRYING HIM

By Beatrice Fairfax

An Authority on All Problems of Girls and Questions of Love and Romance.

THE letter I think of today happens to be written by a girl. I suppose somewhere in the world there may also be a man who would be silly enough to write one like it. Which prepares you in advance for what I'm going to say about this confession of a girl who is surely sweet enough and fine enough to know better than her very unworthy letter leads us to expect.

For the last two years I have been going about with a man of twenty-five times and again he has proposed to me. During this time I have been going out with other men now and then, as well. The true reason I did not consider his proposals too seriously is this:

"It happens that this young man is rather homely, and the criticisms of my various friends and relatives have made me dubious as to the steps I contemplate taking. He has won my affection that I have for him by his extreme good nature and great respect for me. But I do not feel that I really love him. Of course I do like him and sometimes feel that, in time, I could learn to love him. My folks advise me to follow the dictates of my own heart, but still they feel that I should at least be in the company of a young man or two, in case critics to pass such remarks as

"He pretty a girl must have been hard up to have chosen such a homely man!"

Oh, my dear Rosemary — for that's the name like an old-fashioned garden that is suspended to that far from sweet and flowerlike epistle. Oh, Rosemary, how can you be such a silly, silly little goose?

What are good looks, after all, but the cover of the book? Sometimes it is a very beautiful cover, no doubt, and we look at it with delighted eyes. But what person with sense ever bought a book just for the cover—or read one just because of a hand-tooled binding?

Rosemary, my dear—are you going to let a few silly folks rule your life? Suppose they do think that you're pretty and might manage to find a handsomer man. So you might. But he might be an idler, a no'er-do-well, a cheap who has neither kindness nor consideration in his heart. A pink and white complexion doesn't always go with a fine disposition. Long lashes don't prove business ability. Nor do magnificent broad shoulders always bend considerately to the burden of making a living.

Character counts. It generally marks itself out in lines of strength on a man's face. It is bound to give a certain sturdiness to his bearing. Character lasts. Smallpox and influenza and time have been known to come along and bounce on beauty.

Beauty fades, as we all very well know. And the things that last are just as likely to be a big nose, a pug nose and a chin that's too jutting as behind perfectly hewn features. Don't you see—for beauty has a way of thinking that it is "its own excuse for being" And so a handsome man sometimes becomes so selfish and self-satisfied that there is really no living with him.

Rosemary—listen to your own common sense, which you probably hoped I'd bolster up with some word of mine. Don't put a man out of your life because he doesn't look like something that would do to grace a magazine cover. You want a man to make a home, not a statue to put on the lawn.

The All-Year School

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever.

Professor in the University of Kansas and an Educator of Nation-Wide Reputation.

BY authorizing by statute an all-year school for its children the State of Utah has set a standard of education never before reached by any other State of the Union or by any foreign government. The faith of the Commonwealth of Utah in the future of her children here reaches the level of a prophetic vision of a new civilization. This new radical law is a recognition of the fact that the child is learning during every waking hour of his life and that the entire learning process should be under direct control and supervision.

I hope all the educators of this country will study the new educational program of Utah with profound interest and concern. Note its salient features:

1. Yearly registration of all children of school age.

2. Thirty weeks of formal school. Pupils above sixteen years of age who have completed eighth grade may be excused to enter employment, provided they attend school 144 hours per year.

3. Enrollment for twelve months—in at least one subject which combines classroom instruction with supervised direction of some out-of-school activity. For example, classroom instruction may be combined with home projects in agriculture, home making, community civics, personal hygiene and physical education.

4. Participation in out-of-school organizations—that make for citizenship, such as Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, mutual improvement societies, Sunday schools, glee clubs, town bands, orchestras, choirs and thrift campaigns.

5. Supervision of pupil at work—in order that he may have a square deal and an opportunity to find the work for which he is adapted; also guidance of the pupil in habits of health, thrift, civic service and in play and recreation.

It must be clearly marked that this epoch-making Utah plan does not imply suppression of the natural interests and desires of pupils but rather the proper stimulation and guidance of those interests. Better still, the all-year plan implies a putting off of the waste of time and energy so common to all children during vacation and the entire after-school period.

The implied and anticipated moral significance of the new law is perhaps its greatest asset. The purpose here is clearly that of defending the child during his leisure time against the petty vices which grow out of idleness and undirected play energy.

The commercialized forms of amusement and entertainment of the young will be dealt a heavy and much deserved blow by this new Utah measure.

Let us hope that educators will journey from far and wide to study the workings of the new law and to profit by its example.

A Nautical Discovery

Alice and James had visited a yachting district, and though they knew next to nothing about yachts they endeavored to hide their ignorance as best they could. While James gazed out upon the white-sailed vessels Alice flopped upon the cliff beside him and did her best to understand a nautical novel which she had borrowed from the library. "What does this mean, James?" she asked. "The author says that the boat was sailing 'wing and wing.'" "That means," he answered, "that the—the—schooner had her mains'l out to port, and her what-d'you-call-it—fore'—out to starboard—or the other way about." "How interesting!" she cried. "Just like a chicken—a wing on each side. I see now why they call these little sails in the middle, 'jibs.' Short for gibbets, of course."

SUGARLESS PIE

Wash about one-half pound of prunes several times, cover with boiling water and cook very slowly on the back of the range, over a simmering burner on a gas range, or in a fireless cooker for twenty-four to thirty-six hours. Add water as needed to keep covered, and at last let the juice cook down till it is thick. Stone the prunes, measure, and add the raisins, prunes and lemon juice. Bake in one crust with narrow strips of pastry over the top. This makes a small pie.—November Good Housekeeping.

The Oldest Paved Street

THE oldest pavement on record in modern cities is that of Cordova, in Spain, paved with stones by the Moors in the middle of the ninth century. Paris was the next city to pave its streets, when the name of the city was changed from Lutetia.

A Mystery Metal

COSTING $200 an ounce, zirconium is one of the most precious metals employed by scientists. Its value lies in the fact that it is a wonderful substitute for other metals. Since platinum became so scarce, it has been used in its stead.

PART III.

VI.

AMY FORRESTER was already in the white throng which crowded the veranda and streamed over the green lawns. She came up bravely to meet them, waving her handkerchief.

"Good gracious, what lazy people! Really, Irma, if you run away with my husband like that, I shall be getting jealous," she exclaimed loud enough for several persons to hear.

"Is she going to fight for him?" thought Irma, while Andrew was divided between irritation at an attitude which he knew to be false and admiration for the gameness with which she bore it.

"Well, she stands up to the guns," he thought, gratefully. Under the merciful shade of the lace sun hat she wore, he detected the shadows of a sleepless night. Unaccustomed to the manners of society, to its stoic etiquette and its hidden sorrows, its ambuscades, its unnatural gaiety, Amy suffered profoundly, more profoundly than she had ever remembered, yet she consoled herself with the thought that she was inflicting a greater humiliation. She had but one idea—to keep them constantly under her supervision. It was a martyrdom she imposed on herself. So determined was she to carry it through to the last drop of bitterness that with the end of the afternoon she called Bracken to her.

"I have something to ask of you," she began—"something disagreeable."

"What is it?" he said, watching her anxiously.

"Yes."

"Yes, I can. I've made up my mind to. I'm going to carry it through today, through to the bitter end!" she said in a lifeless voice. "She shall enjoy what she's done. After today, I don't care what they do—but today I have a right to punish her!"

"Amy," he said earnestly, "I beg you not to do that—"

"And I am going to. Will you come?"

"It's not an easy thing you ask of me," he said abruptly.

"I know—will you come?"

"If you insist—yes," he said after a moment. But the last feature was spared them. Rudolph Dellabarre arrived in his motor skiff and Irma, seizing the providential way out, announced that she would return with her husband.

"Better go back in a party—all of us," said Monte Bracken at her elbow. They were a little apart from the crowd which was breaking up, automobiles departing, motor boats streaking over the bay.

"Yes, I suppose," she said wearily.

"Very."

"Listen, Amy," he said suddenly, carried away by the pain of seeing her suffering. "I'm going to say something to you, and I don't want you to answer me. I want you to hear it, that's all. Don't turn around, but listen. It's a touch moment for you, God knows. I understand it more than you think. The whole world's breaking up. Now, I want you to have something to cling to. I want you to know where I stand. Perhaps I shouldn't say this now. It's a horrible thing to say such things. But I feel you need to know one thing. Whatever turns up, count on me. No, don't say anything that would spoil it. If you need me—when you need me—I am ready, that's all."

She did not answer, nor did her glance leave the motor boat which had now swindled into a speck. At most her lips tightened a little, and a breath went through her body.

"Do you understand?" he asked, touching her arm. Despite all he had announced he watched her, hoping for a sign. He repeated: "Do you understand, Amy?"

She nodded, a faint almost imperceptible nod of the head, yes. She could not look at him, her glance still out among the waters of the bay at a shadow that fled.

VII.

THE next weeks passed on the edge of a volcano. Andrew came and went. Outwardly there was no sign of anything changed between them. The house was always full of gaiety, and the occasions when they were left alone were rare. At times, by accident, they met, and each time in his eyes was the same wistful question.

What are you going to do about it?"

This constant intimacy, this estrangement in the end, was hard enough, but what was worse were the days when he was in New York, when at the last moment came a telephone message that he would not return for the night. What did he do in the city? Was he seeing her? It was forbade her to inquire directly but by a dozen subterfuges, through Kitty or the boys, she followed the movements of Irma Dellabarre. From the evening on the veranda at the yacht club, when he had departed himself Monte Bracken had studiously avoided her. When she saw him at a dinner, on the bathing beach or at a dance he came up to her immediately, and in his eyes, watchful and her steadily, she read the same question.

"What are you going to do about it?"

She held them from her, these two men, and examined them calmly, without flinching. It seemed to her that she was playing with life and death, and that in her hands were the destinies of both. Monte Bracken aroused in all the fallow sources of sentiment in her. With him, every instinct of enjoyment awoke. She felt his understanding, his complete sympathy. For the comradeship of every desire and every impulse. She said to herself that she did not yet love him, but immediately she admitted that to do so would be the easiest thing in the world, and that Andrew, by his attitude, was driving her to it. Andrew, on the other hand, aroused all the worst in her. Irma, who stood as her rival, not only in the present of Andrew, but in the past of Monte Bracken. She hated her for the very secret of her thoughts. She was afraid of him, not of his brilliant side—the mind that awoke her mind, the dramatic touch about him which captured her imagination—but the gentler side, the exquisite deference toward her, his tact, his patience, and the longing in his eyes to hold forth his hand, the deeper side of the man which she had reached, the Bracken who, since the night of their return over several waters, she knew loved her. In the end she yielded to the need of knowing him at least. When he was in the room she had a sensation of electric strength to which she went avidly in the utter weakness of the loneliness to which she wandered. Every day, somehow or other, she managed to see him, but always in the presence of others, and at times when she thought no one was watching him. Then, secure in themselves on both his destiny, his attention, too, lay in her hands.

And then, abruptly without preparation, at a week when Andrew had been away, came the solution precipitated itself.

It had been a dry day in July, and toward the evening a little breeze had set the bay to rippling, and the evening had been delicious. They had gone for a sail in Irma's new racing sloop the Water Sprite, a marvel of light grace and speed, with Irma herself sitting at the tiller. They had raced at the end of the week, and from the glowing decks Kitty and Amy, stretched in an ecstasy of languor, dozed in the fine afternoon. Always there was the sense of sails flattened against the blue line by Across the widening distance, the forms of Irma Dellabarre and Monte Bracken, and Irma lounging at the bow. Between the two men an intense rivalry existed, which the latter, boats, not content with the race, had converted into a struggle for the wind. Irma, however, had the best of it, for the sweeping descent on each other for an attempted blanketing, the challenge of the right of way which brought them from time to time in perilous proximity, only to glide gaily away and

From where she lay under the creaking boom that passed and repassed in the light breeze with the ease of a swallow a darling Amy Forrester through half closed eyes watched Monte Bracken. He was sitting on the deck a little lower than the line of the tanned throat and arms revealed in the creamy shirt. A pipe in his mouth, he held her balanced against the slight tilting of the deck, where below a beaded edge of waters lace curled on the fairied hips. From time to time he gave a grave calm order to a sailor, his eyes never leaving the end of the bowsprit or watching with approbation even the answering challenge of the White Witch, Irma's racer. Irma was not a great, fiery hellion sail, testing the quantities of his adversary. Yet in all this solicitude of the master, occasionally his glance came back to her, seemed to question her half veiled gaze, lit up with a smile passed and returned again.

In the world, and to love him meant all the romance of youth that had escaped her.

Her husband she saw clearly for the first time. From the beginning she had had no feeling of resentment toward him. A great feeling of pity moved her. She wished to protect him against himself. How could he be so blind? Yes, she had failed, but chiefly in her relations toward him. The crisis at which she stood was too great for her to deceive herself about that. She had meant nothing to him—and he deserved no more. He was fine all the way through. He had not even reproached her, when he had every right. But Irma—how could she suffer from the friendship of Irma, of all women—Irma, who was only playing with sensations who dramatized herself, who had no profounder instincts than the staging of her coquetries. What had infatuated him? What could he see in Irma, who saw her so clearly? The next thing perhaps would be Cora Smith-Jones, and she felt her head lifted then if he wanted a divorce and the opportunity to find some one who could give him a true home, she would do so gladly with only the kindest of feeling. And then she came to this inevitable conclusion of her problem: her head burned and her eyes were wet with tears.

"I don't love him! I wanted to love him, but I can't—I can't!" she assured herself. "She can't take him away from me. I won't respect him and I shall not be ashamed of him. What would

PEGGY O'DAY, Boston

JANE HARTEMAN, Springfield

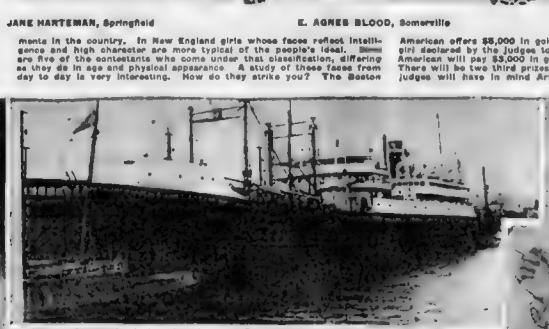
E. AGNES BLOOD, Somerville

ROSE LEVINE, Dorchester

MARION R. RYAN, Boston

BEAUTY IS LARGELY A MATTER OF OPINION—There is the chorus beauty, whose looks are judged by her figure and the way she handles her make-up. There is the delicate Southern beauty and the rugged outdoor girl. The types are as many as there are sections and environments in the country. In New England girls whose faces reflect intelligence and high character are more typical of the people's ideal. Here are five of the contestants who come under that classification, differing as they do in age and physical appearance. A study of these faces from day to day is very interesting. How do they strike you? The Boston American offers $5,000 in gold for photographs of lovely girls. To the girl declared by the judges to be the loveliest girl in New England, the American will pay $3,000 in gold. To the next in merit, $1,000 in gold. There will be two third prizes of $500 each. In awarding the prizes the judges will have in mind Arthur Brisbane's definition of beauty. Mr. Brisbane says beauty is "intelligence in a fine setting." The judges will study the photographs, first for intelligence, second for health, and third for physical beauty. There are no strings attached. Just send in your photograph or your friend's to the "Loveliest Girl Editor," Boston American, P. O. Box 238, Boston 8, Mass.

HIS DOOM IS SEALED—Some three weeks hence this old boy will be adorning some festive board. That's what he gets for eating so heavy. Take a look at his front porch. Think of the white meat. Oh, boy. And don't forget the many families who cannot buy turkey at 66 cents a pound. Send in your contribution to the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund. —Underwood & Underwood.



MADE IN AMERICA—And she's a beauty. The Panhandle State, transatlantic liner built in the United States in twenty years, has proved the success of oil as a fuel for ocean-going craft. With the ever-increasing demands on oil production it will be a welcome day when the fields in Mexico are able to get their production up and to market. —(c) Kadel & Herbert

HER LUCKY DAY—Mrs. T. G. Nicholson of Chicago had a remarkable escape when a tree crashed down on the car she was driving. The car also got away luckily. —Underwood & Underwood.

WHAT NEXT?—Viola Walker gave the lounge lizards at San Francisco hotels the season's thrill by appearing with bare legs dyed a deep henna. Note the dagger! —International.

SHADES OF MODESTY—These gargoyles have been keeping an eye on Paris from Notre Dame since the latter was a pup. Old Pete Gargoyle of the pompadour has lost an eye looking at the modern woman. "Do you see what I do?" he asks his eagle-lamped friend. But Henry Eagle is too shocked for utterance. His jaw drops and his eyes pop forth from their sockets. —(c) Kadel & Herbert

NOW WHO'D O' THUNK IT—Old Ethel B. Ostrich is very much confused. Can't understand how she happens to be laying a three-pound egg every 48 hours. The joke is on Ethel. Two scientists blew the eggs up with a bicycle pump and sneaked them under Ethel while she was sleeping. When she looks into that shell and finds it—look out. —(c) Kadel & Herbert

NICE PLACE TO LIVE—Expedition into Central Borneo finds wild boar, boa constrictors, deadly scorpions and insects in such large numbers that the natives hang their children up by rattan ropes instead of using cradles. In spite of this many children are eaten by crocodiles. Attention of S. P. C. C. —(c) Central.

WEIRD STORE—Aymara Indian woman sells her wares from the back of a llama. A llama appears to be a sort of half-baked camel without any hump. He chews his cud like a cow and has long fur like an alpaca. This llama appears to have "llamped" the camera man and is striking an attitude, as it were. Larry, turn the crank.

MAY BE KING—"Bugs" Baer has entered a protest against 15-year-old Prince Paul being crowned King of Greece. "Bugs" says the monkey won in a fair fight. The King is dead, long live the King. —(c) International.

TRAVELS WORLD ALONE—Miss Estrid Ott of Copenhagen, 19 years old, is on a trip around the world studying Girl Scouts. She is a scout captain and the author of five books. —(c) Underwood & Underwood.

WHY NOT?—The United States Health Service has utilized large metal disks on ships' hawsers to prevent disease-laden rats from entering the country. The board is working to prevent any possibility of a bubonic plague. We need some laws to take care of the two-legged ones that are arriving daily on the Pacific Coast. —(c) International.

Has Large Surplus

Regarding the recent dealins of Swift International, which closed with a small loss yesterday but was off 2¾ at its lowest, Vice-President Charles H. Swift says: "The condition of the Compania Swift Internacional does not warrant the least break in the price of the company's shares. The company has a large surplus, and while like other companies dealing in commodities, it has taken some losses, it is making money and the outlook is satisfactory."

RAILS ADVANCE AT OPENING

Industrials Yield Before the Bear Onslaught; Many Sell at 1920 Lows

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, with the exception of a number of rails and a few other issues. Carriers were the strongest class. Industrials showed little resistance to the bear onslaught. The lowest level was reached in the second hour, when more stocks sold at new lows for the year, including American Zinc, Woolen common, Worthington Pump, Consolidated Textile, Virginia Carolina Chemical and U. S. Rubber. Seneca sold at a new high. Before the end of the morning prices rallied a little. The market active, first hour transactions amounting to 200,000 shares.

Call money opened at 9 per cent. There was profit-taking in rails, but wiped out Southern Pacific's morning gain. Foreign exchange rates ruled lower, opening quotations being demand sterling 43 41-16, up ⅛ cent; francs 7.46½, off 2 points; lire 5.49¼, off 3.0004; marks 0.0123, off 3.0001.

WEAK AT THE OPENING.

Industrials were weak at the opening, but rails as a class showed strength. Some of the latter were at their highest for the year and a number of the former at their lowest. The main aspect the market began today where it left off yesterday. Active carriers the early trend was downward and the upward movement of rails did not include them all. Northern Pacific was an early feature, opening with a fractional advance, but soon selling at a 1920 high. Oil developments in the territory of this system have expanded the demand for the stock. Chesapeake & Ohio made the biggest early gain, advancing nearly three points and also selling at its year's highest. Other particularly strong issues were Southern Pacific, Reading and New York Central. Among the weakest were Agricultural chemical, American Woolen common, Crucible, Atlantic Gulf, International Harvester, International Paper, Mexican Petroleum, Royal Dutch, Pierce Arrow, Vanadium and Utah Copper.

LOSSES WERE LARGE.

During the first hour declines ranged from fractions to thirteen points, Standard Oil of New Jersey receding the most. Atlantic Gulf had sagged five. Stocks to sell at year lows included Hide and Leather preferred, International Harvester, International Paper, Kelly Springfield, International Mercantile Marines issues, Pierce Arrow and Denver and Rio Grande common and preferred. Among rails to sell at their highest for 1920 were Atchison, Great Northern preferred, and Southern Pacific. Coppers were irregular and quiet, Utah Copper off a point. Equipments were weak at mid-morning. It was said in financial district that railroad shares were resuming their old-time leadership on the stock exchange. A bertan showing as to earnings is looked for in their October reports. Industrials are suffering at present from curtailed operations and the consequent effect upon their profits.

RAILROADS HANDLING MORE SOFT COAL

Regarding the fuel situation the Coal Age says:

"Looking ahead of the present with its record output, fair-price and fair-practice committees, declining markets and general uncertainty, there is plainly discernible in the near-future a brisk demand for bituminous coal. The largest factor contributing to this situation is the recuperation of the railroads. The struggle for increased output of soft coal that began last April has had many setbacks throughout the Summer, but has finally culminated in a performance of a day throughout October with what amounts to a certainty that the railroads can and will keep up this pace as long as may be necessary."

GERMANY BUYS MORE AMERICAN COPPER

It is stated that on two days this week the American Copper Export Association has sold more Copper to Germany than has been marketed in that country since the pre-war period. The price was not lowered from 17 cents a pound, but the amount disposed of has not been announced. Sales to French interests are also reported. These transactions are supposed to involve the export of the approximately 20,000,500 pounds sold by the American Smelting & Refining Co.

Domestic consumption is said to be showing more interest in the metal market at 15 cents a pound, however, copper is selling at from 1 to 3 cents below the present average cost of production.

PRICES LOWER IN BOSTON

Local Market Has Downward Trend During the Morning; Curb Quiet and Irregular

There was an irregular price movement on the Boston exchanges at the opening, but the trend was downward and the market became weak by the end of an hour. Eastern Manufacturing sold at a new low for 1920. Packing issues were more animated and also weaker. Coppers were indefinite in movement and New England rails were neglected. United Fruit declined two points on its first sale and lost half of it on the second. Americans Oil was a little stronger. New River preferred advanced a couple of points on one sale. Among issues to receive public or more were Massachusetts Gas, Quincy, Swift & Co. and International Products.

Sharp cuts to make fractional gains were Isle Royale, Carson Hill, St. Mary's Land and Waldorf. Further losses were sustained by Boston Elevated, U. S. Smelting, United Drug common, Eastern Manufacturing, New Cornelia, Hightop, Eastern Steamship, Waltham Watch and Edison.

MIXED CURB MOVEMENT.

The Curb had a mixed movement at the outset, but the tendency was toward a lower level and losses soon outnumbered gains. Trading was quiet at the start and as usual continued to a few issues. Among these were Bagdad, Boston & Montana and Eureka, Issues to show strength were Arizona Silver, Boston & Montana, Eureka and Manhattan, while weak ones were Allied Mining, Merrimac, Pilgrim, Texana and Palisade.

At the end of an hour Bagdad was off 1 cent at 24 cents, Eureka 1 cents at 52 cents, Tip Top 1 cent at 13 cents, Ranier 2 cents at 16 cents, Texana 2 cents at 13 cents and Verde Mines 1 at 22 cents. Among gains were Boston & Montana 1 cent at 42 cents and Black Hawk 3 cents at 28 cents. Allied Mining had recovered its loss.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

During October the Island Oil & Transport Corporation shipped 1,022,535 barrels of oil from Mexico, an increase of 42,178 as compared with September.

H. Bruning Company, New York that the White Oil Corporation is negotiating for the purchase of property in the Mexican Tuxpan district and 15 acres in Panuco and Tuxpan fields. The Mexican Petroleum Co. is developing the Maculuba River field on the property.

Coal consumption by the Boston Elevated road approximates 300,000 tons a year and in 1919 its coal bill was $1,800,000. It will be much larger this year, before the end of the road's annual fuel costs did not total $2,000,000.

The daily run of the Beacon Oil Refinery is 15,000 barrels of crude oil, but it is said these is now under consideration the erection of a refinery with a capacity of 50,000 barrels. It received 1,719,508 barrels of crude under contract with the Mexican Gulf Oil Corporation during October.

Net profits by the Mullins Body Corporation for the first nine months of the year amounted to $602,975, equal after preferred dividends to $2.63 a share on 100,000 shares common no par stock.

The Lowell Mills have filed with the Massachusetts Commissioner of corporations a notice of an increase in its capital stock from $1,875,000 to $2,500,000.

Twenty Massachusetts railways are now using gasoline but only six are "legal" investment for savings banks—having actually earned and paid upon maximum of capital, dividends of at least 5 per cent. in each of the five preceding years.

It is announced by White, Weld & Co. that the $10,000,000 7 per cent. bonds recently sold their Boston offices.

Pig Iron Demand Decreases

A decrease in the demand for pig iron is reflected by the closing of thirty-two furnaces between October 1 and November 1. October production in the United States was 3,375,154 gross tons, against 3,129,333 in September. The daily rate was 108,876 tons, a record for the year, apart from March, and only January showed a larger total in 1919.

Rail Earnings

Baltimore & Ohio's gross increased $5,862,366 in September and its gain in net was $343,026. Gross increased $25,862,940 in nine months and a deficit of $8,455,224 compared with $3,178,337 net for the corresponding 1919 period.

Canadian Pacific's gross increased $1,701,000 during the fourth October week, while the gain from January 1 was $6,245,000.

For September the St. Louis & San Francisco gross from operations was $2,806,000 and net income of $2,068,719.

For September the operating revenue of New York, Chicago & St. Louis increased $939,844 and operating income decreased $458,345. From January 1 increases were $2,554,997 and $186,-752.

September increases reported by Missouri, Kansas & Texas were operating revenue $1,121,121 and operating income $466,346, while from January 1 they were $8,127,192 and $1,-257,-157 respectively.

The Denver & Rio Grande reports decrease in operating revenue in September and its operating income was $1,215,000. For nine months operating revenue increased $4,491,290 and operating income decreased $458,345.

The gross of the Union Pacific System increased $3,747,803 in September and $25,-356,-586 in nine months, while net operating income increased $797,395 for September and $3,-483,-186 for nine months.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, Nov. 5.—The sub-treasury lost $2,000,000 on the day's transactions, making the cash net loss since Friday $1,745,000.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Nov. 5.—A severe break occurred in prices at the opening of the cotton market, in sympathy with a decline in Liverpool, supplemented by the weather all over the belt, which was generally fine. The list opened 100 to 200 points lower. Initial quotations showed losses of 100 to 150 points on active months. Liverpool cabled unchanged to 1 point lower to 1 point higher. Spot cotton in Liverpool was off 10 points at 27.06d. After the start the market rallied about 200 points from the lowest, influenced by covering. Interest absorbed the offerings. Opening prices: December, 19.72; March, 19.70; May, 19.70; July, 19.10; September, 18.70 bid; October, 18.50 bid.

Man, 130, to Furnish Lesson to Doctors

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 5.—John Sheil, who is 130 years old, will go to Chicago on December 15 to let the most prominent physicians of the country examine him and see if they can find out why he has lived so long. He has received an invitation to make the trip from the Illinois State Medical Society.

He says he drinks whiskey when he can get it and that he eats everything he can get hold of. Sheil has a daughter living, who lives near him, and a son, who lives with him. The aged man is in better condition than he has been in the last three or four years.

"They WORK while you sleep"

Cascarets

Take one or two Cascarets occasionally to keep your liver and bowels active. When these are satisfied, headachy, unstrung or for a cold, upset stomach, or bad breath, nothing acts so nicely as Cascarets. Children love them too. 10, 25, 50 cents

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, scarcely hair taken on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful, because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 25-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty-tonic" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness—All druggists!

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage, brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.—Advertisement.

PAY DRIVE FOR MAIL CLERKS

U. S. Railway Men Want 35 Per Cent. Rise and Civil Service Appeals Court

A campaign to secure more pay and improved working conditions was launched today by the Association of Railway Mail Clerks.

"We want three things," said C. L. Lockenbach, president of the Boston branch, "a temporary salary increase of thirty-five per cent, a Labor Board to adjust problems of postal employes and a Civil Service Court of Appeals."

Publicity and personal appeals to Congressmen and Senators are the instruments through which the clerks plan to accomplish these aims. Their charters bar strike methods.

A raise of eleven per cent, allowed them after an investigation last year by a committee of Congress, is declared inadequate and far below the decreased purchasing power of the money compared with pre-war salaries, the clerks contend.

The congressional committee left the recommendations for salary increases largely to an advisory committee and the clerks say that they did not have fair representation on the advisory body.

UNFAIR REPRESENTATION.

The 440 postoffice inspectors in the country, they said, had five representatives on the advisory body and received an increase of fifty per cent, while the 20,000 railway mail clerks had only two representatives and received eleven per cent.

The maximum salary of railway mail clerks is now $2,150, remains at the association said, and the average pay of those in the service is $1,755, which they said, represented an increase of forty-three per cent, since 1916.

"We are asking the approaching session of Congress to give us an increase of 35 per cent, until such time as a labor board can be established and put the pay of postal employes on a permanent and fair basis," said President Luckenbach.

"The Civil Service Court of Appeals which we propose would be of a wide scope and is one of the greatest beneficial measures for all employes of the Civil Service ever advocated. We believe that there is great need of such a court."

HAVE NO APPEAL.

At present, postal clerks say, they have virtually no recourse from arbitrary rulings of department heads.

The railway mail clerks claim that they often suffer financial loss from orders transferring them to other routes which necessitate moving their families to some other locality at a cost of several hundred dollars. Their only alternative under such an order, they said, was to take a terminal position at lower salary.

These clerks also demand a clearer definition of the standard eight-hour day for railway mail clerks. They are now compelled, they said, to spend much of the time when off duty memorizing new postal routings or attending to their clerical work.

Several years are required for the thorough training of a railway mail clerk. Mail for Boston is sorted for hundreds of classifications while en route to the city and must be ready for the carrier or postoffice box when the train arrives in the terminal. When sixty-two years old they are automatically retired on a pension of $720 a year.

EXPECTS ONE-MAN CARS TO BE BARRED IN STATE SOON

William B. Fitzgerald, first vice-president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employes of America, who has been here investigating the protest against the loss of one-man cars by the union members, announced before leaving the city for Fall River to continue his investigation, that the Public Service Commission soon would issue an order forbidding the operation of these cars unless equipped with safety appliances. It was also announced that the street railway workers are solidly backing the proposed bill, to be introduced at the next Legislature, forbidding the operation of one-man cars in Massachusetts.

ARTILLERY COMPANY FILMS AT CITY CLUB

Moving pictures depicting the career of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in France will be shown in the auditorium of the Boston City Club Monday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, says an announcement made by Captain C. J. McKenzie, commandant. Special arrangements have been made with Captain R. H. Greene, owner of the official war movies, taking the company from Hoboken overseas, through their various "Jams" and into Germany after the signing of the armistice.

To Celebrate Victory

Newport, R. I., Nov. 5.—Thousands of Newport citizens are expected to take part in the 'Victory Parade' tonight, with which the Republicans of this city plan to celebrate the triumph of Harding and Coolidge.

BOSTON COLLEGE ASKS $2,000,000

Plan Drive to Enlarge Institution for at Least 4 Times Present Enrollment

Boston College, which bases its claim to be "one of the fastest growing educational institutions in the United States" upon a 1,000 per cent. increase in attendance in the last ten years, plans a $2,000,000 expansion campaign to be conducted in Greater Boston and vicinity early next Spring. The entire $2,000,000 to be raised during the campaign will be expended for enlarging the present plant, giving facilities for at least four times the present enrollment when the contemplated buildings are completed.

The announcement of the proposed campaign comes from the Rev. William Devlin, S.J., president of the college. The organization work for the expansion campaign has already started and headquarters have been established at Nos. 60 and 602 Boylston Building, 10 Court street.

HALF MILLION SCIENCE HALL.

With the completion of the campaign work will be begun at once on a large and fully equipped Science Hall. The structure will cost in the neighborhood of half a million and will be equipped throughout with modern apparatus for experimental laboratory and shop work.

Boston College will make its appeal to the citizens of this community in order that its second half century of service to the thousands of young men seeking a higher education may be even greater and better than its past.

In announcing the plans for the expansion of Boston College, Father Devlin said:

"Now that Boston College has passed the half century mark, we are more than conscious of the great responsibility to provide for our young men new educational advantages. In planning to increase the facilities and improve the educational advantages of Boston College we feel that this appeal for funds will not be in vain.

EXPANSION NEED PRONOUNCED.

"Boston College does not appeal for funds to increase salaries nor to indues indebtedness. It wants financial aid to increase its present facilities, both in class room and laboratories, which the student body has now far outgrown. The demand for additional room at Boston College is pronounced, our expansion program must be carried out with all possible speed."

Included in the expansion plans of Boston College is a modern athletic gymnasium to be erected on the present campus of the college at an outlay of close on $150,000.

One of the features of the Boston College gymnasium will be the Memorial Hall, dedicated to the sons of Boston College who gave up their lives during the late war. A dirt track will also be installed.

A library building and chapel will also be erected as a part of the $2,000,000 expansion campaign.

FOREST FIRE-FIGHTING BILLS FLOOD WARDEN

New Bedford, Nov. 5.—Charles T. Dexter, fire warden of Mattapoisett, is wondering what to do with the flood of bills for service in fighting the recent forest fires near the Marion line. He says that some of the bills are from men who were not asked to get on the pay-roll and others come from men who were not near the fire lines. Marion taxpayers are declaring that Mattapoisett should be made to pay the $15,000 estimated damage done by the fire, claiming that if the Mattapoisett fire fighters had done their work the flames would not have crossed the line.

NURSES GIVE TALKS FOR SIMMONS COLLEGE FUND

Five nurses on the staff of the Instructive District Nursing Association in East Boston gave a composite illustrated lecture upon the benefit of the Simmons College Endowment fund. Miss Margaret Connolly, who was at Base Hospital No. 9 at Bordeaux, gave an account of her experiences in the Havre, Paris, and Bordeaux. Miss Mary Johnson and Miss Margaret Boe, who were together in Verdun and St. Mihiel, and Miss Cecelia Curran, who was in the South sector, continued the progressive talks.

MRS. C. R. EDWARDS AT RECEPTION TO SHANKS

Vice-President-elect Calvin Coolidge, Governor-elect Channing H. Cox and Mrs. Ulamore Shanks will be present tonight at the reception which will be given to General David C. Shanks, commanding officer of the First Corps Area, at the Army and Navy Club, Park square, by members of the Community Service. The reception is one of the features in connection with the Armed and Navy club drive for $37,000 for the renovation and maintenance of the clubhouse.

Substitute for League Like World Court

Washington, Nov. 5.—The proposed new association of nations which President-elect Harding will suggest to displace the present league, will be based upon the international court of arbitral justice formulated by former Secretary of State Knox. It was learned here today. Some of the ideas contained in the thirty-two treaties of arbitration negotiated by Mr. Bryan will also be included.

The permanent headquarters of the proposed association, it was stated by a high diplomatic official, will be at The Hague, where the machinery for a court is already available.

Under the plan suggested each participating nation will have a resident delegate, who will be a member of the world court, which will pass upon all questions threatening immediate war. Each nation, big and little, will have one vote, a majority to decide.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE EXONERATES PASTOR

Peabody, Nov. 5.—Rev. Robert A. Bakeman, pastor of the Second Congregational Church, and a teacher of Americanization in the public schools, was supported by the School Committee in his contention that he had not advocated a Soviet form of government. Mayor S. Howard Donnell preferred the charges, and refused to sign pay vouchers for Bakeman's services.

We Want Coolidge as Active Force in Washington

One of the virtues claimed for Senator Harding is his disposition to invite the advice and assistance of those in whom he has confidence. Indeed, Senator Harding himself has claimed, during the campaign, as a political asset that he not only proposes to reverse the policy of President Wilson to be a law and a judgment unto himself alone, but that he also proposes to consult and cooperate with those with whom under the Constitution he is associated in the government.

This includes, of course, Vice-President-elect Coolidge. We in Massachusetts have seen enough of Mr. Coolidge to know that his judgment is worth consulting and we want it consulted. We want Mr. Coolidge to be more than the Vice-President has become in recent years. We want him to be more than the fifth wheel to a coach. We want him to be an active, effective part of the National Government.

Mr. Coolidge is more conservative than we should like him to be, but his disposition has been progressive in the last few years. It has been his fate to be on the conservative side of one or two notorious cases which rather belie his whole record. Those who were privileged to know the attitude which the Governor took concerning the banking situation in Boston recently will appreciate that he is not a blind reactionary by any means.

We hope and trust that Vice-President-elect Coolidge will take Senator Harding's word to mean actually what he says it means and will permit no false ideas of modesty to prevent him from participating in the conduct of our National Government during the next four years.

Boston Democratic Leaders Victim of a Brainstorm

Our Democratic leaders who undertook to deliver the friends of freedom of the oppressed peoples of the world to the League of Nations at the eleventh hour can now look upon the results of their labors and contemplate their impotency as leaders.

What brainstorm led them to believe that they could make intelligent human beings, who wanted to see Ireland or Egypt or India or Mesopotamia or Persia or Korea or Shantung or Morocco or any other oppressed nationality free, believe that the way to freedom was through the League of Nations passes all understanding.

The language of Articles 10, 11 and 15 is perfectly clear. Any ordinary citizen who reads them will reach just one conclusion, and that conclusion must be that the league, with those articles in it, slams the door in the face of the only way to freedom which little nations have ever found.

Now, this natural conclusion of the reading of the plain English of these three articles has been confirmed by the construction which President De Valera, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, Honorable Frank P. Walsh, the representative of the Irish cause before the Paris Peace Conference, and the National Convention of the Friends of Irish Freedom, held two weeks ago in New York, have given the league.

What monument of conceit made these alleged Democratic leaders of Boston think that they could mislead the voters of Boston on a question so plain?

Why Not Let Volunteers Help Repair Holes in the Streets

The city streets are in extraordinary poor condition. We receive multitudes of letters complaining about this condition. Great holes lay in wait at night for the unfortunate automobile or wagon. We received a letter this morning complaining of this condition. It is the last one of many—the last straw which moved us to write this editorial. The letter says, referring to these holes, "the plunge at many of the crossings is anywhere from two to eight inches—great business for men who make auto springs, but pretty tough for one who has a friend with a small car and takes you for a spin once in a while."

Our correspondent then suggests a plan to improve the streets. We present it for what it is worth:

"In nearly every section the city has a yard where supplies of all kinds are kept on hand. Let the city give the residents permission to go to the yards and get a few wheelbarrow loads of gravel for use on the streets in their immediate neighborhoods. They will willingly do it and the traffic will do the rest."

If this plan is feasible we hope that the city will undertake it. There is no economy more false than that of neglecting the condition of our streets. It is the worst kind of saving at the spigot and wasting at the bunghole.

Gallagher Did Something to Bring Food Prices Down

The American congratulates United States District Attorney Gallagher upon the reductions in the prices of food which he has forced from the hotels and restaurants.

To be sure these reductions are not very great, but they are reductions and they indicate that there has been profiteering and that the United States District Attorney's office is potent to stop that kind of profiteering.

All things are relative in this world and when one United States District Attorney out of fifty succeeds in making any reduction in the cost of living, he has won a signal victory which should be remembered in his favor.

The newspapers have scolded. The public has grumbled and the prosecuting officers of the government have talked about what they were going to do, but Mr. Gallagher seems to be one of the few who has actually done something.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Price She Pays

By S. E. KISER

WHILE she is graceful and young and mysterious
Roses are plucked to be scattered before her;
Nothing's too good for her, nothing's too rare for her,

DOWN in the regions where wild men are yelling,
Where fortunes are made every hour, or lost,
She is the cause of the buying and selling—
Deep in the mines men are digging and fighting
For the jewels that later shall gleam on her breast;
The bald-headed Governor gladly is writing
A pardon because she has made the request.

WHEN she looks backward regretfully, tearfully,
Leave her to grieve in her pitiful shabbiness,
Pass on your way with your gifts, and forget her!

Here's a Case of Hard Luck

DAMON RUNYON wrote the other day that there is such a thing in life as good and bad luck.

William Finnegan of North Cambridge proves it.

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir: The following may interest your readers, and may help to speed up the mail.

I am a young man who had the misfortune to lose both legs several years ago. Several months ago, Mr. Dodge of West & Dodge, Faneuil Station, gave me a chance to work in his machine shop, and I think I have 'made good.' I decided to try and obtain instructions in several subjects this Winter, and was told to write to a certain prominent man in Boston, who is interested in cases like mine.

I wrote this letter to the gentleman referred to on September 17. Not receiving any reply, I did him an injustice by thinking that he was not interested.

But he had answered my letter and was going to give me the chance to take up any studies I wished this Winter. He mailed the letter September 20, and I received it November 1, forty-one days after it had been mailed in Boston.

Naturally, the gentleman thought I had received the letter and was not interested enough to call on him. That's what this speed(?)y mail delivery has done for me—prevented me from getting the chance to better my condition in life.

The question is: Where was this letter—in the postoffice for forty-one days? It was plainly addressed and stamped, and any schoolboy could tell where it should be delivered. If this happened to a letter of some large business concern, I feel sure that something would be done in the matter. But, as I am simply one of the unfortunates in life, I must be content to keep silent, unless someone speaks for me.

If this letter will interest some people in the effort to improve conditions, I will have done a little good, anyway.

Sincerely,
WILLIAM F. FINNEGAN,
2495 Mass. ave.,
North Cambridge.

JUST A moment ago.
AS I write.
THE TELEPHONE rang.
AND I answered.
AND SOMEONE told me.
ABOUT CHAPE'S wife.
CHAPE BEING a friend.
AND THEY said.
SHE HAD gone to sleep.
AND HADN'T wakened.
AND HIS boy Buddie.
AND ANY mother.
AND SITTING here.
IT SEEMED to me.
IF I must write.
IT MUST be of them.
AND I know.
SHE'D LIKE me to do it.
JUST FOR Chape.
AND FOR Buddie.
AND YOU.
WHO DIDN'T know them.
YOU WON'T mind.
AND BESIDES.
I'M VERY sure.
THAT LITTLE Buddie.
WILL EXPECT it.
AND JUST now.
HE'S LEARNING to read.
AND ONE of his lessons,
IS THIS column.
HIS MOTHER clipped.
AND PUT in a book.
AND ONE time.
I WROTE of Buddie.
AND I remember.
HOW GLAD she was.
AND WE were friends.
AND SOMEHOW.
I HAVE a feeling.
THAT WHEN it's over.
AND BUDDIE and Chape.
ARE ALL alone.
THAT BUDDIE will ask.
"DID UNCLE Ken.
AND I want Chape.
TO BE able to say.
"YES, BUDDIE.
"IT'S IN the book."

I THANK you.

POSSIBLES GUIDE OUR EVERYDAY ACTIONS

OUR only real friends are the Possibles.

Of course we mix with Tom, Dick and Harry, we meet certain men in the way of business, we have our neighbors in the town and friends of friends of ours sometimes drop in, and there are society acquaintances, and church brothers, and fellow political partisans, and members of the same lodge and club, not to mention the friendly grocer and the amiable life insurance agent, and all that. But friends, that is to say friends, well, our only genuine, absolute and wholly acceptable friends, intimate and enduring, are the Possibles.

We never met them.

We dream of them, but we do not see them in our waking hours.

Whenever the doorbell rings unexpectedly we suspect one may be coming, but he never comes.

When we sit down by a stranger in the railway coach and begin conversation a faint hope tinkles that this may be he, but it is not. Pretty soon he shows a streak we do not like.

It is for them we went to school and improved our mind, so that they would not be ashamed of us.

It is to make a good impression on them that we select our hats.

We have our boots shined so they will notice.

We save money so that they will not find us dependent on them when they come.

For their sakes we are as good as we are, and if it were not for fear of their disapproval we would not make half the effort.

Every letter whose envelope does not reveal its sender may be from one of them. It never is.

We are as hunters that pursue the White Flag, or children after the Blue Bird.

They know us so well they would not be shocked at our incipient obscenities. They would understand.

Putting Things Off

THERE are so many glad things you are going to do—when you get time. A prominent lawyer once told us of his little boy of six. He was very proud of his papa, and never got chance enough to play with him. This little boy wanted very much to go out to the Zoo and see the animals, and his papa said that he would take him—some day. But the lawyer was busy. He never could spare the time. He was working, working, at his office, to make money so that some day the little boy could get an education and have all manner of advantages. He never seemed to find time for that day off to go with Willy to the Zoo.

Then one day Willy was sick. He did not get better. Toward the last the lawyer sat at his son's bedside holding his hand. "And," he told us, as his throat choked and tears came to his eyes, "Do you know what was the last thing he said to me? It was: "'We'll go to the Zoo—some time. Won't we, daddy?'"

"What do you think of that? I had postponed it—postponed the best thing in the world!"

WE THANK YOU

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir: Good luck to the Hearst newspapers. May they always guard America and keep her clear of European entanglements. The victory just won is a triumph for Americanism and buries forever the Wilson-Lloyd George Black and Tan League of Nations.

OKLAHOMA CHURCHES GUARDING CHILD

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever.

Professor in the University of Kansas and an Authority on Child Training.

THE church leaders of many cities in the State of Oklahoma are uniting upon a new plan of standardization of their effort to safeguard their peculiar interests in the welfare of children. The general idea is this: To act with other existent agencies and in accordance with a concrete program. And in order to make the work elastic I have made out for general distribution among the church and Sunday school leaders there the following list of specifications:

Provide ways whereby the Sunday school may be extended to meet the children's interests in play, games and athletics.

Seek to co-ordinate the work of the young people's societies in all local churches and to organize them into a social union.

Arrange for social affairs within the churches—including clubs, gymnasiums and motion pictures—such as shall tend to lure adolescents away from the coarser amusements.

Attempt to centralize under one general superintendent or management the work of all the local Sunday schools, especially as to course of study and supply of teachers.

Work out a uniform and definite program to be used by all the ministers and church leaders in combatting local agencies which tend to demoralize the young.

Provide for an annual union teacher-training institute and for child-study classes in the separate church bodies, together with service projects for the individual classes.

Organize a vacation Bible school for all children and undertake methodical advertising and propaganda in behalf of that and all the other larger and similar projects.

Make out a general course of study for Sunday schools, to cover adequately the necessary instruction in relation to alcohol, narcotics and excessive use of sweetmeats.

In the foregoing we have a brief step toward a genuine league of Sunday schools. If such a procedure can be carried to its proper conclusions there should result a marked reduction in the waste of effort and the chaotic spirit under which the child-fostering agencies of the church are today everywhere working. I hope that the leaders throughout the country will at least watch Oklahoma in this significant attempt and try to gain some benefit from every progressive step there taken.

Stars and Stripes

It is hard to believe that women are as bad as they are painted nowadays.

Congress will try again to kill the high cost of living—by talking it to death.

Isn't it funny that there is but one broad-minded person in the world?

If poverty be a crime, the crime is committed by those who permit it to exist.

The man who is always buying something that he doesn't need, soon finds himself unable to buy things that he does need.

The man who complains because he has to wait ten minutes in a barber shop will wait two hours to get a seat in a poker game and never whimper.
